

Nixon 'sings along' at inaugural fetes

Antiwar music lures throng

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An ebullient President Nixon sang along with the crowd, clapped hands and smilingly overlooked two renditions of George McGovern's campaign song as he opened the inaugural festivities Friday night with a round of concerts.

Clearly exuberant over the pomp and circumstance, Nixon, his family and guest Mamie Eisenhower worked in a visit to all three gala concerts in the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, getting a taste of symphonic, contemporary American and folk music.

At the youth concert, a beaming Nixon entrance brought down the house. Young people packed in the 1,100-seat hall cheered and applauded through choruses of "Hail to the Chief" and some even started to applaud as the "Star Spangled Banner" was played.

It appeared Nixon could not have enjoyed himself more. Twice he heard the Mike Curb Congregation of singers ring out with "This Land Is My Land" — Sen. George McGovern's campaign song of last November — but Nixon seemed not to mind.

When the audience was coaxed into singing, "I'll Teach the World to Sing," Nixon stomped his feet, clapped his hands and sang right along.

At the more sedate symphonic concert with its ce-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A standing-room-only crowd of more than 2,500 people filled the Washington National Cathedral Friday night to hear Leonard Bernstein conduct Haydn's "Mass in a Time of War," the first major event of three days of counter-inaugural activities.

Loudspeakers were installed on the Pilgrim steps outside the Cathedral for others who could not get inside.

The concert was opened by the Rev. Francis D. Sayre, Jr., dean of the cathedral, who prayed that "we may seek afresh Thy peace in all the world." The Mass was written by Franz Joseph Haydn in 1796 to express his disillusion with the Napoleonic wars.

The free cathedral performance, billed as "a concert for peace," was timed to coincide with the official inaugural concert given at the Kennedy Center featuring the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy conducting, and for which tickets cost from $40 to $500.

Earlier in the evening a peace rally scheduled for a local park was rained out, and about 200 demonstrators gathered in a local church to hear speakers denounce the war and its domestic impact.

Antiwar protesters also visited the White House gates seeking to present President Nixon petitions asking him to sign the peace agreement reached with Hanoi last October.

Lebrity-studded audience, he was given a command performance of one of his favorites: Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" — less the gunfire, which was simulated by drums to ease the strain on the Secret Service's nerves.

Mrs. Nixon, approvingly observing her husband's evident enjoyment of the youth concert and his vigorous reception, said, "It's wonderful when young people are not afraid to show their patriotism."

The evening performance marked the beginning of an inaugural extravaganza of unprecedented proportions.

Americans by the thou-tal during the day and found it warm, rainy, jammed with cars and virtually without downtown parking spaces.

Despite the air of gaiety and Nixon's feeling that a Vietnam peace is near, counter-inaugural war protesters massed for demonstrations they promised would be peaceful to mark the presidential swearing-in.

The climax of the four-day, $4 million extravaganza — the costliest party Washington has ever seen — will come at noon EST today, when Nixon takes his 35-word oath of office on the east steps of the Capitol.

About 2,000 Army and Marine troops were poised outside the District of Columbia in the event of trouble. Security was the tightest ever for an inauguration. Manhole covers along the two-mile parade route were pried open for inspection, and office buildings along Pennsylvania Avenue were declared off-limits for Saturday's parade.

Nixon returned to the White House Thursday night from Key Biscayne, Fla., where he spent several days working on his inaugural speech and conferring with aides about a Vietnam peace settlement. Administration sources said the President will assert in his speech that the nation is on the brink of a "just and lasting" peace,

Hold dozen hostage Bandits battle 150 police

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four young gunmen who fought a fierce gun battle with scores of heavily armed police Friday night held nearly a dozen persons hostage in a Brooklyn sporting goods store.

Early today, more than six hours after the shoot-out began, there was a tense stalemate between the gunmen and the police, who surrounded the store but made no move to storm the building. The incident began as a robbery.

One policeman was killed and two were wounded in the exchange of fire earlier Friday evening. One of the gunmen was reported wounded and the gunmen called for a physician.

"THEY said they would rather die than come out," a police officer said. The gunmen had been holed up in the store since Friday evening.

Police ringed the building, sharpshooters sighting in on the shop, but there was no movement to storm the building and free the hostages.

"They're loaded with stuff in there," another officer said, referring to the rifles, pistols and stores of ammunition in the store.

Some officers were pinned down under the fire of the gunmen for four hours. An armored car and a special sniper squad were brought to the scene to permit the trapped policemen to escape.

Other police said they saw persons with their hands on their heads standing at the front windows of the store.

Police negotiated with the gunmen to surrender, but four hours after the young men entered the store there was no sign of progress. Shooting resumed about 10:30 p.m. EST.

A police helicopter hovered overhead and more than 150 policemen, many wearing bullet-proof vests, stood on an elevated train platform overlooking the store or crouched behind automobiles.

The exact number of hostages was impossible to determine. Police at first said 15, then said there were four gunmen and 11 hostages. Other officers said there were 10 hostages.

The scene was directly across the street from a bar used to film the movie "The French Connection" and the elevated train platform was the same used in the chase scene of the movie.

The gunmen released one hostage, a girl about 17 years old, in response to a police request to send out an intermediary.

The girl said one of the hostages was wounded and lying on the floor bleeding and coughing up blood. Police Sgs. Edward Johnson said the released hostage told him:

"These men are desperate . . . They will fight it out to the end."

The dead officer — Steve Gilroy, 29 — was shot through the head. A colleague said the dead policeman was wearing a ceramic-type vest, but no helmet. He was shot by a gunman at a side door of the two-story sporting goods store.

The drama apparently began about 6 p.m. as a holdup. The gunmen, interrupted by the arrival of a police radio car, retreated to the store and opened fire.

Police and the gunmen traded shots for about 75 minutes. Then police, us-

Gunman shoots up airport building, commandeers jet

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A man fired at least 20 rounds from a shotgun in crowded Slandford Field airport Friday and then commandeered an Ozark Airlines' DC9 jetliner holding a mechanic hostage.

The gunman demanded a pilot to fly him to an undetermined destination.

Witnesses at the airport said the man, described as short and clean-cut, pulled the shotgun from an Army duffel bag and fired "methodically" at doors, windows and the ceiling near the American Airlines desk on the airport's mezzanine. There were about 100 people nearby, but no one was injured.

The incident began about 9:10 p.m. EST.

As police approached, the man fled the terminal area and ran aboard the Ozark jet. The mechanic was the only person aboard the plane, officials said.

Airport officials said the gunman ordered the mechanic to talk by radio to the control tower and order a pilot. The officials said the gunman seemed uncertain where he wanted to be flown. He was offered another plane, but reportedly refused to get off the DC9, which was described as flyable.

Police said they planned to "wait him out." FBI sharpshooters were stationed on the terminal roof, with their rifles pointed at the aircraft. Officials said several persons who said they thought they knew the gunman were taken to the control tower to talk with him.

The man, who reportedly told control tower officials his name was "Alex," was described as about 5-foot-7, in his mid-20's and clean shaven. He was wearing Army pants and an Army utility jacket.

Bill Wilder, a newsman for radio station WKLO here, said he was waiting for his mother to arrive on a flight from New York City when he heard the first blast of the shotgun.

"I looked up onto the mezzanine and saw the guy, who looked very calm, shooting away at windows and walls.

"I scurried my family to safety and then crawled on my hands and knees to a telephone and called police. While I was calling I could see the man's reflection in windows. He was methodically pumping the shotgun.

"He would pivot in one direction and 'boom,' pivot another way and boom." He blasted out two large thick airport windows and then turned and shot out two big plate glass sliding doors leading to the American Airlines section," Wilder said.

Airport officials closed the facility to all incoming and outgoing flights. Wilder said police searched the bag the man was carrying and found only a match book with an advertisement for a California bar.

Thieu paper says Feb. 3 Countdown to cease-fire

By United Press International

South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam said Friday the United States and South Vietnam are "very close" to a cease-fire agreement with the Communists. A Saigon newspaper with family ties to the government said a truce could go into effect Feb. 3.

In Washington, outgoing Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird urged the South Vietnamese to back any cease-fire agreement fully. Otherwise, he said, they might find it "very, very difficult" getting further support from the United States.

Thailand's prime minister, Thanom Kittikachorn, said a cease-fire could be extended to Cambodia and Laos about 10 days after going into effect in Vietnam. But he said U.S. presidential emissary Gen. Alexander Haig was returning to Saigon from Bangkok because "there are still some questions to be worked out."

In Paris, U.S. and North Vietnam law and language experts held another technical level meeting in advance of the scheduled Tuesday resumption of top level negotiations between Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho. The diplomatic experts have been meeting almost continually in Paris, spending long hours on the protocols which will accompany an eventual cease-fire agreement.

In Washington, President Nixon conferred for 75 minutes Friday with Kissinger on Vietnam peace negotiations. He then began putting finishing touches to his inaugural speech.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President would not deal with Vietnam negotiations in his inaugural address, but obviously was going to refer to peace in that area.

Ziegler was asked about a Columbia Broadcasting System report that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew might fly to Saigon to initial a peace agreement. He did not give a direct response, dismissing the report as speculation. Ag-fly cases involved an AC130 crewman in mid-1971 and an F4 crewman in mid-1972. Air Force officials said those men did not refuse a specific order.

Instead they indicated in advance they would not fly certain types of missions. Because of that distinction, they did not technically vi-

Demo Eugene Wyman dies

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Eugene L. Wyman, one of California's most prominent Democrats, died Friday of an apparent heart attack outside his law office here.

An aide said Wyman collapsed in an elevator.

Wyman, 47, was a nationally prominent Democratic fund-raiser and a close friend of Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. He was the husband of former Los Angeles City Councilwoman Rosalind Wyman.

He was a former state chairman of the Democratic party and a former national committeeman from California.

Wyman's 56-man law firm is one of the West's most important.

EUGENE L. WYMAN
Prominent Fund Raiser

He was one of Hubert Humphrey's most important fund-raisers both in 1968 and 1972.

Wyman was graduated from Northwestern University and Harvard Law School and, although interested in politics, first built a law practice as a trial lawyer.

"That's the toughest job for a lawyer," he said later. "You either win or lose, and nobody but you gets the blame or the credit."

Mrs. Wyman, the first woman to hold a post on the city council, was a delegate to the 1956 Democratic National Convention, and a strong backer of John F. Kennedy for president. Partly because of his wife's involvement, Wyman moved into national politics.

He raised about $50,000 for the Kennedy campaign of 1960, which he later called his "learning experience." His first big fund-raising job came in 1962 in former Gov. Edmund G. Brown's successful race against Richard Nixon for governor of California.

He once explained why he chose fund-raising: "There are lots of writers and thinkers in a campaign, but fund-raising is the tough job, the one nobody wants. If you can do it, you're in."

He served as Democratic National Committeeman from California from 1964 to 1968.

Corona calm as juror vascillates

Combined News Services

Juan Corona ate heartily and relaxed in his Fairfield cell Friday while the jury which found him guilty of the biggest murder spree in U.S. history differed over a holdout's contention she had been pressured to change her mind.

After the jury Thursday returned the verdict that Corona was guilty of slaying 25 itinerant field hands, juror Mrs. Naomi Underwood told reporters. "I am still not convinced yet." She alone held out for an innocent verdict for two days before changing her vote.

Armed with her statements and what he cited as errors in law, defense attorney Richard Hawk prepared a motion for a new trial for Corona, a 38-year-old Mexican farm labor broker. Arguments on Hawk's motion will be heard Jan. 29.

"I love her," said Hawk of Mrs. Underwood, a 63-year-old widow. "Certainly we will use this as a basis for appeal. She blew the whole thing wide open."

Fellow juror Don Rogers, 62, a retired machinist, said of Mrs. Underwood's doubts:

"I don't know what goes on in the mind of a woman. I've been married to one for 36 years and I haven't found out yet."

Jury foreman Ernest Phillips, a 53-year-old retired Air Force sergeant, said he initially had voted for acquittal "but as we went over the evidence we convinced ourselves that there was no other decision we could reach."

The new go-go dancer at the Camelot Inn in Walled Lake, outside Detroit, is 6 feet tall, weighs 180 pounds and measures something like 40-32-36. The only thing covering him from the waist up is the hair on his chest.

Dick Currin, a bartender and would-be comedian at the Camelot, was under mild pressure from the liberation movement when he made the decision to take to the stage in his under-shorts.

"It all started with a dare," Currin said. "Two ladies came into the bar and said they wanted to see some men dance. So I grabbed a bar towel and started goofing around."

"Everybody liked it so much they said they wanted to keep it going. I told the boss for $5 an hour I'd do it — just joking — and he said, 'Sure.'"

"I'm not an ape," Currin added, "but I have hair on my chest. And if the ladies want more I'll buy a toupee."

Tough guy

Movie tough guy Lawrence Tierney was reported "quiet and resting comfortably" Friday in St. Clare's Hospital in New York, where he is recovering from surgery for a stab wound in the abdomen.

Tierney was admitted to the hospital Thursday after he was allegedly stabbed outside a bar by Robert Losado, 57, who was arrested.

Tierney, 54, gained fame by portraying gangster John Dillinger in a movie in 1945.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's only daughter was married Friday. Twice. Once in a traditional Vietnamese ceremony and later at the Saigon cathedral.

Nguyen Thi Thuan Anh, 18, wed Nguyen Tan Trien, the son of Nguyen Tan Trung, the multimillionaire director-general of Air Vietnam, the country's international carrier.

The bride and groom will leave for the U.S. in a few days to study at the University of Pittsburgh.

U.S. weather: snow, fog, rain, sun

Combined News Services

A mixture of snow, fog, rain, freezing drizzle and even some sun made up the nation's weather Friday. Arizona and Utah bore the brunt of a snowstorm. Another system brought snow or flurries to the northern Great Lakes, rain or drizzle across the eastern Ohio Valley and into the interiors of the middle Atlantic Coast states. Fog, snow and freezing drizzle spread over the Northern Plains. It was mostly sunny from Florida into the Central Plains.

'Executioners' hunted

WASHINGTON — Police searched Friday for eight black men in what they called the "systematic execution" of seven members of a Muslim sect said to be feuding with other Muslim factions.

The two men and five children were killed Thursday afternoon in a large, luxurious northwest Washington house that had been donated to the Hanafi Muslims for a headquarters by Milwaukee Bucks basketball star Kareem Abdul Jabbar, formerly known as Lew Alcindor. One theory was that the killings resulted from a years-long feud between the two main branches of Islamic adherents in the United States, one led by the Black Muslims' Elijah Muhammad and the other stemming from a breakaway faction begun by the late Malcolm X.

IRA threat against aiding British

BELFAST — The bravery of a civilian hero who helped foil a guerrilla bank raid in Belfast provoked the Irish Republican Army on Friday to threaten reprisals against citizens aiding security forces. The man alerted a soldier on guard duty as the four IRA guerrillas raided the bank in a city hospital Thursday. In a gun battle seconds later, the soldier shot dead a 25-year-old guerrilla clutching a sack of stolen money. The IRA's Provisional wing, which staged the raid, said Friday: "We hereby warn all civilians who cooperate in a like manner with security forces that they must face the consequences."

Japan to pay postwar debt

TOKYO — Japan will settle her postwar contracted debt to the United States for $175 million to the U.S. government in May, the cabinet decided Friday. Government sources said the U.S. sought the early repayment because of the adverse American balance of payments and Japan's present large cash reserves. Much of the aid consisted of supplies of food, fuel and other items made available by the U.S. government to keep Japan from starvation in the early postwar era.

GOP ratifies Bush

WASHINGTON — The Republican National Committee unanimously ratified George Bush as the new GOP national chairman Friday amid signs of lingering strains between top party officials and managers of President Nixon's triumphant re-election campaign. Bush, 48, a Texan who served the past two years as the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, succeeded Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas.

Teacher strikes drag on Teachers strikes in Philadelphia, Chicago and Superior, Wis., dragged on Friday with little hope that the 850,000 students affected by the walkouts would be back in class by Monday. In St. Louis, there were indications a teachers' strike could come as early as Monday. Two teachers organizations, representing about half the 4,000 teachers, scheduled a strike vote Sunday.

Prison unrest quelled

RICHMOND, Va. — A 50-man contingent of guards used tear gas to quell a disturbance at the Virginia State Penitentiary Friday. A spokesman said tear gas was used after 29 inmates barricaded themselves in a dining area and refused to return to their cells. It was the second time in as many months that the century-old prison became the scene of an inmate uprising.

Last 8 tuna boats freed

LIMA, Peru — The last eight of 16 U.S. tuna boats seized by Peru this week for illegal fishing have been released after paying penalties, the Navy Ministry said Friday. The 16 boats were seized Wednesday and Thursday along with a Panamanian tuna clipper in Peru's biggest sweep to clear foreign fishing boats from the 200-mile territorial sea it claims.

2nd French nuclear sub

PARIS — The French navy's second missile-launching nuclear submarine, the Terrible, has gone into service in the North Atlantic area, giving France a permanent submarine-borne nuclear deterrent for the first time, the government announced Friday. The 8,000-ton Terrible joins the Redoutable in maintaining a permanent patrol. Each carries 16 Polaris-type atomic missiles with a range of 1,500 miles, the distance from the North Sea to Moscow.

Actress' son seized

BUENOS AIRES — Armed men kidnapped the 8-year-old son of television actress Alejandra Climent Friday and demanded a ransom of $300,000, police reported. No deadline for payment was reported.

Tense moments

Prime minister Golda Meir said in an interview published Friday in Tel Aviv that her audience with Pope Paul VI at the Vatican this week was a historic but, sometimes tense meeting that revived memories of Christian persecution of Jews through the ages.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said the meeting had "spiritual and political value" for the Jewish people because of the Arab efforts to brand the state of Israel illegal. He said the Pope viewed Israel as "an historical fact."

Mrs. Meir said that despite "tense moments in the discussion" Monday Pope Paul had expressed thanks for the way Israel treated the Roman Catholic holy places and Christians in Jerusalem.

On the go

Singer Vikki Carr, against doctor's orders, left her hospital bed at Baylor Center in Houston to keep an engagement with President Nixon's inaugural committee Friday, a spokesman for the performer said in Los Angeles.

Miss Carr had been hospitalized with an undetermined respiratory ailment which interrupted her Las Vegas hotel appearance earlier this week.

"It had nothing to do with politics, but a girl doesn't stand up the president of her country," she said. "If he can put up with a frog in my throat, so can I."

43 years of watching sky near end

JERRY PARDUE
"Mr. Weather Service"

After 43 years of sky-watching, the National Hurricane Center's "Mr. Weather Service" is closing a career that began with people just talking about the weather and ends with them trying to do something about it.

"I guess I've been through or have been exposed to maybe 100 hurricanes," said Leonard "Jerry" Pardue, 63, in Miami, Fla., Friday. "No, it must be more like 150 I've either been in or helped track."

Pardue, who retires Jan. 31, joined the then U.S. Weather Bureau in 1930 as a junior observer in Montgomery, Ala. In the ensuing years he worked at Key West, Jacksonville and Lakeland, Fla.; Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans before moving to Miami in 1948.

The title "Mr. Weather Service" was given to Pardue for his radio and television broadcasts during hurricane alerts.

"I wasn't very good, but I didn't have to be," he said. "I had a captive audience."

Among his store of hurricane stories is the tale of the travelers who got a lot of mileage out of a $4 train ticket.

"I was in Key West when the big hurricane of 1935 went through the mid-Keys and killed over 400 people," Pardue said.

"But there were several hundred people who had taken the train excursion from Miami and were cut off in Key West after the road and railroad were knocked out by the hurricane."

"The railroad put them on a ship to Tampa, then by train to Jacksonville and they got on another train that took them back to Miami," Pardue said.

"That was a 1,000 mile trip to get to a place that was only 100 miles away."

Pardue said he has seen considerable changes in weather predicting since 1930, although he conceded the advances in day to day forecasting "hasn't been too dramatic."

Pardue said one of the oddest incidents in his career involved the use of weather records to prove a woman's birthdate so she could get a birth certificate.

"She didn't know the exact date of her birth, but she knew that a hurricane had passed over her town about noon on the day she was born," he said. "We went into the records and found the hurricane and the day — it was back in the 30s."

"The next year, I bought her a big birthday card and all the men on the staff signed it and sent it to her," Pardue said. "It might have been the first one she ever got."

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., refused Monday to be searched by a metal detector at Evansville's Dress Regional Airport, it was revealed Friday.

The former Evansville mayor was permitted to board an Allegheny Airlines plane bound for Indianapolis.

"The senator said of the incident that he was 'not even carrying luggage.'"

"But apart from that," he added, "I have consistently and with rising indignation objected to airport searches which go far beyond legal and necessary protection against hijackers."

The metal detector requires persons to stand with their arms raised while the instrument is passed about their bodies.

Denies guilt

Norman Wexler, who wrote the screenplay for the movie "Joe," pleaded innocent Friday in San Francisco to federal charges of interfering with a flight crew aboard an airplane.

The judge set Feb. 12 for a jury trial for the 46-year-old writer, who was arrested Dec. 14 after an incident on a flight to San Francisco from New York.

The FBI said Wexler threatened President Nixon's life and also abused the crew and passengers on the jetliner.

Wallace bill

Since he was shot at a political rally in Maryland in May, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama has incurred hospital bills of about $17,500, not including the cost of nursing services and rehabilitation aids, Wallace's office in Montgomery said Friday.

Much of the medical expense, however, was covered by the governor's insurance policies.

Drug guru Timothy Leary back in jail

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Drug guru Timothy Leary was booked into the Orange County Jail at Santa Ana Friday afternoon, ending an odyssey of freedom which began in September 1970 when he escaped from a Prison camp.

Leary, Harvard University lecturer turned high priest of LSD, is due to be arraigned Monday in the Santa Ana Superior Court to answer to a grand jury indictment listing 19 drug charges growing out of raids in which 46 men and women were accused of worldwide trafficking in narcotics of all kinds.

The accusations centered around the so-called Brotherhood of Eternal Love, a group franchised by the state as a nonprofit religious organization. Instead, the state now claims, it became the center for an international drug ring, and manufactured LSD known as "Orange Sunshine" which was marketed around the world.

Then the state's Franchise Tax Board slapped a $76 million lien on Leary's Brotherhood, and lifted its franchise.

Leary was booked into jail quietly and without much public ado — as greeted his arrival in Los Angeles International Airport the day before after a flight from Kabul, Afghanistan, where a narcotics agent spotted him and nabbed him as a fugitive. He had been sought since he slipped away from the California Men's Colony at San Luis Obispo in September, 1970. That escape allegedly was engineered by the militant minority group called Weathermen, who took public credit for Leary's flight. He next appeared in Algeria as guest of Eldridge Cleaver and the Black Panthers, then toured the continent and wound up in Switzerland.

Swiss authorities ordered him out of the country, and he and his wife Rosemary, 38, left December 31. She was not with him when he was arrested in Kabul. Her whereabouts are unknown.

Mrs. Leary had served six months in the Orange County jail on her conviction in the narcotics rap brought by Laguna Beach police in December, 1969. Leary's son, John, now 22, underwent a 90-day psychiatric test at Chino prison and then served a 90-day term in the Orange County jail before he was released on probation.

Leary was imprisoned under a 10 year sentence from Orange County following his conviction on narcotics charges resulting from his arrest in Laguna Beach. He subsequently was convicted in federal court in Texas of smuggling marijuana from Mexico and drew another prison term.

After he became a fugitive he was under a $5-million bail.

2 welders die in diesel blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a diesel fuel tank at the Nevada Power Co. generating station Friday, killing two members of a welding crew.

Fire officials said there was four feet of fuel in the 70,000-gallon tank when the five-man crew began working on it. The fate of the other three men was uncertain.

Firemen were allowing the fire to burn itself out while playing streams of foam on another nearby tank which reportedly had developed a leak.

The explosion occurred shortly after 10:30 a.m. at the steam plant in east Las Vegas.

Are the accounts deposited in savings and loan firms protected by federally-guaranteed coverage, or do these firms insure themselves? J.W., Long Beach.

Virtually all savings and loan firms are covered by federal insurance. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) was established by the government in the 1930s at the same time that FDIC was. FDIC and FSLIC insure accounts up to $20,000. FSLIC coverage is mandatory for all federally-chartered savings and loan firms. In the past, such coverage was optional for state-licensed companies, but recent legislation now requires all newly-established state firms to carry FSLIC. Even when the coverage was optional, virtually all state firms carried it anyway as a means of attracting business, according to a government spokesman. Thrift and loan firms, which basically are finance companies, are not required to carry FSLIC or FDIC, but by state law, they must belong to the Thrift Guaranty Corp. of Calif., which is a private, non-government association. This corporation collects money from each member to cover the accounts up to $10,000 each of any thrift and loan firm that goes bankrupt. A spokesman for the California Department of Corporations, which regulates thrift and loan firms, stressed the fact that accounts held by these firms are not insured as savings and loan or bank accounts are.

Graft

Recently ACTION LINE described how an avocado plant could be started from a seed suspended in water. How long would it take a plant grown like this to produce fruit? G.E.S., Garden Grove.

Although you can grow a leafy green avocado plant from a seed, it never will produce fruit unless it is grafted, or mated with an already productive plant, according to several nursery contacted by ACTION LINE. Grafting essentially involves making a cutting in the stem or branch of a plant and inserting a bud cutting from a productive tree so that a union will form and the partners grow together. The success of the grafting depends almost entirely on close cambial contact between the cutting and the stem or branch. The cambium of a plant is the tissue between the bark and wood, from which new bark and wood develop. The graft must be held in place at first by grafting tape or rubber budding strips, available at most nurseries. A plant grafted correctly probably will not produce fruit for several years, the spokesman said. Since grafting is a delicate process and is not successful unless done properly, you should check with your nurseryman about what time of year to graft and where to obtain a bud to graft to your particular plant.

Trust worthy?

Is there any government agency that regulates the way banks handle trust accounts? I think my account has been handled poorly. Over the last 28 years, the market value of the trust fund has increased only 14 percent. T.S., Long Beach.

Government inspectors audit the trust departments of all banks every year. The auditors, however, do not check each trust fund annually. They usually spot check several accounts each time they audit the trust departments' records. You can request a special investigation of your account. If your bank is federally chartered, write to A. E. Larsen, Regional Administrator of National Banks, 555 California St., San Francisco, Calif. 94104. If the bank is chartered by the state, write to Donald E. Pearson, Superintendent, California Department of Banking, 107 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, Calif. 90012. The names of federally-chartered banks usually contain the word "national."

REACTION

In a recent item you mentioned that the insured person in a life insurance policy owns the policy and has a right to designate whoever he wishes as beneficiary, regardless of who makes the premium payments on the policy. This is true, but the insured does have the right to assign ownership of the policy to someone else, if he wants. This may be done, for instance, if a company insures the life of a key executive to protect itself from loss in the event of his death. In such cases, the company, which would be paying the premiums would undoubtedly demand ownership of the policy to assure that it remain the beneficiary. Changes in assignment of ownership of life insurance policies can be made through the insurance company and its agents. They must be approved by all parties concerned and the assignment then becomes a permanent part of the policy. K.H., Long Beach.

Plea set in murder of policeman

Gary W. Johnson, 37, ace of Tustin Police officer of Tustin Police Officer Waldron G. Karp, will make his plea Jan. 26 to an Orange County Grand Jury indictment.

Besides the murder of Karp, Johnson also is accused of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the wounding of Deputy Sheriff Timothy Stewart, 34, who went to Karp's aid when the shooting erupted Dec. 6.

Karp was shot in the stomach and Deputy Stewart was wounded in the head before he shot Johnson and captured him.

The Tustin officer died Jan. 7. Stewart is recovering.

Before the officer's death, Johnson had been charged with two counts of assault on police officers and was to have gone to trial Feb. 26 in Santa Ana Superior Court.

The grand jury indictment supersedes this schedule and the lesser charges were then dismissed.

Johnson, estranged from his wife and family, allegedly fired his rifle into the home of Mrs. Thomas O'Halloran, a neighbor, and he is charged also with discharging a weapon into an occupied dwelling.

Mother, tot perish in Lennox fire

A Lennox woman and her two-year-old son perished Friday morning when the mother was unable to unbolt the front door and escape from her blazing home, authorities reported.

Firemen said Mrs. Patricia Lynn Fraker, 25, and her son Michael were found dead just inside the front door of the five-room family home at 5140 W. 137th Place.

Fire officials speculated that the blaze began in the front room, and that Mrs. Fraker had carried the child to the front door in an effort to escape. When the front door would not open, they said, she apparently punched a hole in a small window in the door.

Mrs. Fraker may have bled to death, authorities said, from a deep cut on her arm.

The infant apparently was overcome by smoke. He was rushed to Hawthorne Community Hospital, where physicians said he was dead on arrival at 10:25 a.m.

Fire damage to the single-story home was estimated at $3,000, firemen said.

Mrs. Fraker's husband, Paul, was at work at the time of the blaze.

Clock-radio stolen from L.B. apartment

A stereo clock-radio valued at $77 was taken from the apartment of Clarence Beauregard, 1027 E. 15th St., by burglars who opened a window to gain entry, Long Beach police reported Friday.

Orr 'darn proud' of tax surplus

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Of the Reagan administration's projected $1.1 billion tax surplus, $550-to-$640 million will be available for a tax rebate, Finance Director Verne Orr said Friday.

Orr also said the administration is "darn proud" of its fat money stockpile and does not consider it an embarrassment of riches.

"Anytime you can run state government at a surplus, you're not going to be embarrassed by it. I'm not embarrassed, I'm darn proud. I feel a lot better now than I did two years ago when I was cutting programs," he said in an interview.

"But I do think it's more money than we ought to have," Orr continued, "and that's why the governor wants to return it."

Out of the surplus, Orr said $75-to-$150 million should be set aside for a rainy day fiscal cushion. Another roughly $50 million may have to be spent for various appropriation bills. The administration also probably will support a $68 million junior college aid bill.

IN addition, new federal welfare regulations could cost the state anywhere from $87-to-$300 million during the next fiscal year, Orr said.

When all these currently unappropriated but anticipated expenses are added up, they come to between $278 and $556 million, and leave somewhere between $550 and $840 million for the tax rebate. That ranges from $26.50 to $40.50 for every man, woman and child in California.

Orr, Reagan's chief fiscal adviser, indicated a decision will be announced soon on how the governor proposes to "return" the money to taxpayers. He said Reagan wants to be "out front" with his own plan and "we've been talking to him about alternatives."

Some Democrats, including Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys, are advocating an 18-month delay in a sales tax increase scheduled for June 1. Reagan has not foreclosed that, but has been leaning more toward an income tax cut.

REAGAN disclosed the projected surplus Thursday in proposing a $9.26 billion state budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year. It was roughly $270 million higher than the $850 million surplus for this fiscal year he announced last week.

The situation was the exact opposite of the Republican governor's first year in office, 1967, when he proposed a budget half the size of his latest and charged the state's financial resources had been "booted and drained" by the previous Democratic administration.

Reagan pushed through a $1 billion tax increase that year. In 1970, an election year, income taxpayers were granted a one-time 10 per cent cut. But taxes soared again by $500 million in 1972 as income tax withholding went into effect.

"There's no question but that withholding saved us," said Orr.

By last July 1, a $250 million surplus had accumulated, brought on by withholding, a pepped up economy and welfare cutbacks. These factors, plus $100 million in fewer-than-expected expenditures, are resulting in an added $381 million excess this fiscal year. On top of this is piled $230 million in federal revenue sharing.

And "unless a lot goes wrong," Orr said, there will be still another roughly $270 million accumulated next fiscal year. It all adds up to $1.1 billion.

State Senate Democratic Leader George Moscone proposed Friday that the state's $850 million budget surplus be used to pay cash for voter-authorized projects rather than be returned as income tax refunds.

Moscone, speaking at the Third Friday Forum in the Lakewood Country Club, said voters of California have authorized issuance of bonds for some $850 million worth of projects but the bonds have not been issued.

He said the state could save $100 million a year in bond interest if the projects were paid for in cash. Such savings would build a $1 billion surplus within 10 years and the among all taxpayers, he said the surplus was built not only from income tax but from sales, use, cigarette and liquor taxes as well.

Projects included are a $151 million health sciences fund, a $35 million parks and recreation bond with, explaining the benefits.

Projects involving thermal power plants and air pollution were discussed.

ONE OF the professors who spoke was Eugene C. Lee, a political science professor at Berkeley who is director of the Institute of Governmental Studies there.

Among its activities, he said, are commissioning specialized reports on various governmental topics, providing research assistance to students and faculty members, maintaining a library of 350,000 items and developing computer programs to store all the raw data from Mervin Field's California Polls.

"The staff spends large amounts of time assisting state and local officials, citizens and civic leaders, in addition to attempting to serve the needs of faculty and students," Lee said.

SEVERAL of the regents said they were impressed by the presentation and one suggested that similar programs be offered to state officials and the public to give them a better idea of what the university is doing besides offering classes to students.

LA Gov. Ed Reinecke told the board he considers the university to be the state's "greatest resource" and said his office presently is conducting a survey of all the research projects underway in California, both inside and outside UC.

"We are hopeful that out of all this will come a breakthrough in recognition for the resources we do have in the university," he said. Reinecke did not make reference to the newly proposed budget.

UC regents cite research benefits

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

University of California officials, often criticized by the Reagan Administration for placing more emphasis on research than on teaching, presented to the Board of Regents Friday a report on how the state benefits from their research efforts.

"Difficult to quantify but undeniably of great service, our educational and many research programs literally are invaluable," said UC President Charles J. Hitch.

In the 1973-74 budget Gov. Reagan submitted to the Legislature Thursday, UC received none of the $1 million it requested for organized research. But a $1 million allocation was included on the condition that the regents adopt a program to "substantially increase" interest in "excellence of undergraduate instruction."

A UC spokeswoman said the research presentation to the Regents was not timed to coincide with the unveiling of Reagan's fiscal plans. But it may have been a prelude to efforts the university will make in the Legislature to get back the $39.5 million Reagan slashed from UC's requested operating budget of $138.4 million.

Hitch, saying "service to the state of California and its people is our whole reason for being," told the regents that in the 1971-72 school year the university was given 226 projects by 32 state agencies for basic and applied research and training.

Several UC professors then reported to the board on research projects and panels they are involved

Moscone has own tax surplus plan

Issue and community college bonds.

Moscone, an avowed candidate for governor in 1974, also asserted "It is not necessary for California ever to suffer a Ronald Reagan again in the future." Charging the incumbent Republican executive with nonleadership that, in course, would cause the state to atrophy, Moscone said his view "is shared by all my colleagues on both sides of the aisle."

The 43-year-old San Franciscan also sniped obliquely at probable Democratic gubernatorial primary opponent Bob Moretti, Assembly Speaker.

In apparent reference to Moretti's dispensation and retraction of Assembly committee chairmanships, Moscone noted that the Senate is not run by one man but by the five-member Rules Committee.

"We don't punish by saying, 'You vote for this turkey or lose your chairmanship or have your prestige eroded.' The Rules Committee operates our house, and not on a threatening basis."

Moscone said he considers the principal issue of the current legislature to be the implementation of health care as a right and not a privilege. He said the average person, with the best health care plan, now has only about 37 per cent of his medical costs covered.

"We have a great program for delivery of health care services in California — as long as nobody gets sick."

Airwest records first profit ever

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hughes Airwest has reported its first annual profit ever — $1.9 million in 1972.

The 1972 profit compares to a $3.3 million loss in 1971, President Irving T. Tague said. Revenues totaled $96.7 million in 1972 compared to $96.2 million in 1971, he said.

'Worst is over'

L.A. air said losing smog

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Air in the smog-plagued Los Angeles area and other sections of California is the cleanest since the mid-1960s and will continue to improve in the future, a state air pollution official said Friday.

"The worst is over. There will still be plant damage and health effects, but it is not as bad now as a few years ago," said John Kinoshian, acting chief of the division of technical services of the Air Resources Board.

Kinoshian declared photochemical smog is declining in the South Coast Air Basin, which includes all of Ventura and Orange Counties, nearly all of Los Angeles County and parts of San Bernardino, Riverside and Santa Barbara counties.

Improvement in air quality has also been measured in the San Francisco Bay area, Kinoshian said, while other sections of the state are either generally holding their own or showing slight decreases in smog.

Kinoshian made his comments in an interview only five days after the federal Environmental Protection Agency proposed gasoline rationing in the South Coast basin to meet 1977 U.S. smog standards. Hearings will be held on the recommendation.

The smog official's statements were a preview of the annual report of the Air Resources Board, due to be released sometime next week.

Although Kinoshian said air pollution is being reduced, he stressed, "There is no question about air pollution in the South Coast Air Basin, particularly in inland cities."

He said, "Our records show on the average there has been a big reduction of oxidants (an index of the severity of photochemical smog) in the South Coast basin, but it has not been uniform throughout."

The southwestern section of the basin, Kinoshian declared, has shown declines in oxidants since 1963. But in areas such as Pasadena, Azusa, San Bernardino and Riverside oxidants did not decline until 1969.

In the Bay area, Kinoshian stated, oxidants were also lower in 1972 than any year since 1963, which he said is about as far back as computerized records go.

The photochemical smog prevalent in the Los Angeles area which irritates the eyes and makes breathing more difficult is caused by a reaction of oxides of nitrogen and hydrocarbons. The major source of the emissions is the automobile.

PG&E suspends nuclear plant work at Point Arena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. Friday announced it had stopped work on its $800 million nuclear power plant in Mendocino County because of "unresolved geological and seismological questions."

PG&E withdrew its application to the Atomic Energy Commission to build the two nuclear generating units at Point Arena. The units would have generated one million kilowatts each.

In a statement issued in San Francisco the utility also said its decision was based partly on "further uncertainties" caused by the approval of Proposition 20, the coastal initiative, in the November Election.

THE AEC said the company's decision followed a meeting with the government's regulatory staff.

The AEC's regulatory staff told PG&E of the geological and seismological questions raised by the U.S. Geological Survey.

The commission said that during a safety review questions were raised concerning possible offshore and onshore faulting which could affect the site.

The USGS said in its report to the AEC:

"Even given the most careful execution of the exploration program as outlined and the most favorable return of data for efforts expended, there would remain certain areas of inadequate coverage and certain residual indeterminacies which would preclude final evaluation of the site with the degree of conservative assurance normally required for such application."

PG&E President John F. Bonner said, "until all reasonable doubts regarding the suitability of the site are resolved, PG&E has no desire to proceed and has stopped all work at the Mendocino site except for completing geologic and seismic investigations already in progress."

Bonner said the utility might submit its application to the AEC "at such time as it may be able to resolve the present uncertainties."

The first generating unit was scheduled for completion in 1980.

Smog-curb bypass devices ruled out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rejecting appeals from automakers, the government Friday ordered the industry to remove so-called "defeat" devices from automobile pollution control systems.

The Environmental Protection Agency said the devices were designed to bypass the emission control systems and were a violation of the intent of the Clean Air Act of 1972.

THE INDUSTRY argued that the devices were designed to improve engine efficiency and in some cases helped cut pollution rather than increase it.

The order applied to an estimated 2 million 1973 model cars still expected to be produced in the United States. But the EPA did not ask the automakers to recall cars already sold.

The devices are of two types, and are on the majority of 1973 cars.

In one system, the automakers installed temperature sensing devices under the hood which in cold weather will cut out the emission control device while the car is being started.

The other category temporarily limits the effectiveness of pollution control devices at low speeds.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus granted one exception from the order — a spark delay device used by Ford and Chrysler and criticized as a "defeat" device.

A CHRYSLER spokesman said of the exemption: "The EPA decision regarding Chrysler's spark control system is in agreement with engineering evidence that the system is effective and practical for reducing emissions. Naturally we are pleased."

As for the order on the temperature sensing device, the Chrysler spokesman said: "Although we still do not consider the present under-hood location of the temperature sensing devices as defeating in any way, we will comply with EPA's wishes by making any necessary sensing devices react to engine coolant temperature (rather than under-hood air temperature). Such temperature sensing devices have been approved by the EPA."

'Grimy' vandal sought in Frisco oil spill

OAKLAND (AP) — Birds were killed and the shoreline and boats were covered with goo after someone opened valves that sent 100,000 gallons of reclaimed motor oil into a San Francisco Bay estuary Friday.

Officials said it would take days to clean up.

At least 50 waterbirds were killed when covered by the goo and hundreds more were taken to a cleaning station set up at nearby Alameda, state Fish and Game officials said.

Oakland Asst. Fire Chief James Powers said the waste oil gushed from two tanks owned by Port Petroleum Co. of Oakland through a hole in a 4-foot concrete retaining wall, splashed across a street at the port of Oakland and into the estuary through an underground storm drain. Police Capt. John Haubner said the valves apparently were opened by vandals before dawn and gushed for an undetermined amount of time. He said once police were alerted the valves were closed in about 20 minutes.

Haubner said it appeared whoever opened the valves was someone familiar with the apparatus and "pretty determined" because once one valve was opened the oil would have begun gushing around.

Police were questioning company officials and looking for "someone who ought to look pretty grimy," Haubner said. The crankcase oil that had been collected from service stations for reprocessing spread into a slick more than a mile long around Government Island and began oozing toward the nearby cities of Alameda and San Leandro.

Coast Guard boats, firemen and equipment of the Pacific Pollution Control Co., contracted by the federal government, went to work to mop up the spill.

The estuary was closed to marine traffic as three large booms were placed around the slick to keep it from spreading. Special oil sucking vacuums were used to clean the water surface. Coast Guard Capt. John Lynch said the clean-up would take two to four days.

Shoreline and boats were marked with the grime. The Coast Guard said it was not immediately able to assess total damage along the estuary, which is homes, marinas and restaurants.

Fish and Game warden John Parrish said the "magnitude of the loss" to estuary wildlife had not been immediately determined. "I don't know if the worst is over or is yet to come."

"They don't look so good," he said of the birds. "There's been about 150 brought to the cleaning center. Some of those will not make it. There are 50 dead here at the station now."

The mudhens, coots, grebes and scoters are washed in solvent baths, then dried by fish and Game employees and taken to a bird holding station near Napa.

A collision of two oil tankers in January 1971 spilled 800,000 gallons of crude oil in San Francisco Bay, covering beaches for miles with thick, black goo and causing the deaths of thousands of water birds and other wildlife.

Gas Co. seeks new rate hike

Associated Press

Citing higher operating expenses and increased capital costs, Southern California Gas Co. asked the California Public Utilities Commission Friday for a rate increase of $53.1 million.

Company President Harry P. Letton Jr. said residential gas bills would go up an average of 93 cents a month if the PUC approves the request.

He said efficiency programs — including reduction of the work force by 400 and lowering the advertising budget — have reduced operating costs and helped to limit the requested increase.

THE RATE increase is needed to expand underground storage facilities and build new plants, provide the gas company with an 8.5 per cent rate of return and cover increases in operating, maintenance and research costs, Letton said.

The company's rate of profit, Letton said, is expected to fall to 6.1 per cent in 1974 without a rate increase. He said the PUC determined in 1972 that an 8 per cent return was reasonable.

The increase also is needed to pay for installation of noise control equipment at compressor stations, the president said, and to recover revenue which was lost because of a decline in the heating value of natural gas received from out-of-state suppliers.

Letton said that while gas company rate have increased an average of 16 per cent over the last 10 years, the cost of living in the Southern and Central California areas serviced by the company has gone up 37 per cent in the same period.

Navy looks for Gigi in whale herd

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — If anyone sees a gray whale with white tail flukes, call the Navy.

Researchers are curious to know whether Gigi, a once captive whale, is alive and traveling with the whale herd, which is now heading south to Mexican waters.

The AVOL leviathan was released last March 13, after she outgrew her tank and Navy trackers were able to keep tabs on her for about two months before she disappeared. They hope she swam north with other gray whales.

Now Navy researchers are on the lookout for Gigi as the annual winter migration of the gray whale population to Baja California starts. Gigi had very white tail flukes, characteristic of only about two per cent of the gray whale population, he said.

Nixon seen abolishing 2 agencies Science advice panels face ax

By FRANK E. CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Official reports mounted Friday that the Nixon administration plans to abolish the White House's two top advisory agencies on military and civilian science and technology.

The two groups advise the president on matters ranging from weapons to energy production and contaminants to pollution.

THE REPORTS are that the administration plans to eliminate the present Office of Science and Technology—at least in its present structure as a separate federal agency—and also to do away with the President's Science Advisory Committee.

The latter is a group of 20 White House appointed scientists drawn from the ranks of government, academic and industrial groups.

The most recent chief of OST, Dr. Edward W. David, Jr., resigned recently to return to private industry, and he denied published reports that he resigned because he felt his advice had not been followed. The Nixon administration has announced no new nominee to replace him.

ONE REPORT is that the Nixon administration might replace PSAC, a permanent group, with "ad hoc" science advisors drawn primarily from members of an organization called the science and engineering Council. To support the President. The latter group's existence became known shortly before last November's elections.

Newest report is that the administration plans to disband OST as a distinct agency and have some of its functions absorbed by the National Science Foundation and others by the Office of management and Budget.

Panel hails new heroin substitute

WASHINGTON — A tablet combining the drug naloxone and the heroin substitute methadone may cut overdose deaths, levels and wipe out a black market in methadone, the House public health subcommittee chairman said Friday.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., reporting on the latest step resulting from his panel's 1971 call for a drug industry crash program to find new ways of fighting addiction, said "this looks like a tamper-proof answer" to problems of methadone abuse.

Still under an investigational new drug status, the combination of one part naloxone and 20 parts methadone has been tested on 1,400 patients in New York city, St. Louis, New Orleans, and Syracuse, N.Y., said I. J. Pachter, a research official of Bristol Laboratories, developer of the tablet.

At a news conference with Rogers, Pachter claimed the tablet is better than liquid methadone, although the Food and Drug Administration's new rules for using methadone allow the drug to be dispensed only in liquid form.

Pachter said he plans to meet with FDA officials next week in an effort to gain marketing approval. Rogers said he has asked FDA to "give this a very high priority so we can gather the necessary evidence as soon as possible. To date, no side effects have turned up and the scientific data looks good according to Bristol."

Launch of Skylab is postponed

Lagging tests hitch program

By AL ROSSITER JR.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) —The launch of America's Skylab space station was delayed Friday for at least two weeks, from April 30 to sometime in May, because of lagging testing operations.

The space agency said a new launch date for the nation's first manned orbital laboratory will not be determined until additional tests are completed. Skylab is a 44-ton space station designed to be occupied by three crews of three men each for a total of five months over an eight-month period to see how well men can live and work in space for weeks at a time.

THE $2 billion project was scheduled to be completed by Christmas this year, but the launch delay means the program will extend into early 1974.

Astronauts Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz will be the first to occupy the house-sized laboratory. They were scheduled for launch May 1, but their flight will be delayed until one day after Skylab is launched unmanned into a 270-mile high orbit. The April 30 launch date had been set for almost two years, but project director William C. Schneider said the testing work on the big station is now two weeks behind schedule. Informed sources said further delays appeared likely. Schneider met with project officials at the Kennedy Space Center Friday morning and decided to reschedule the launch for the month of May.

"By the end of March the testing of the full-stacked Skylab 1 vehicle should be sufficiently completed so that a full understanding of the remaining work will be available," the space agency said. "At that time, a firm launch date will be estimated."

Schneider said the current testing delay cannot be attributed to any specific section of the complex spacecraft. He said it is the "result of the first-time testing of the modules and many experiments."

The delay will push the launch of the second Skylab crew — Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma — from July 25 to sometime in August. They are to occupy the station for eight weeks.

The third crew — Gerald P. Carr, Dr. Edward G. Gibson and William P. Pogue — had been set for launch Oct. 29 but now will take off sometime in November. They also will spend eight weeks in Skylab.

MORE than five dozen experiments will be carried out by the astronauts. They include several sophisticated medical tests, earth resources surveys, solar observation with the use of a powerful telescope assembly, and space manufacturing and engineering tests.

The Skylab is now mounted on its Saturn 5 rocket in the vehicle assembly building that was built for Apollo moon rockets. The Saturn 5 rocket that will launch Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz on the first mission is undergoing tests on its launch pad.

Shuttle lab OK'd in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The European Space Research Organization ESRO has authorized development of a Shuttle laboratory to fly with the U.S. reusable space shuttle in the 1980s. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday. NASA said in a statement that ESRO voted Thursday to authorize the project, estimated to cost between $250 million and $300 million.

MRS. SUE VANCIL ON JOB AS 'RAMP RAT' AT FLINT, MICH., BISHOP AIRPORT

—AP Wirephoto

Airport 'ramp rat' is a lady

FLINT, Mich. (AP) —Wearing protective earphones to shut out the jet noise, the "ramp rat" flashes a series of hand signals and the big jet's pilot guides his craft toward the freight section at Flint's Bishop Airport.

Arms straight up beckon the plane on, arms cocked at a "9 o'clock" position signal a turn, then comes a slashing motion across the throat and the engines shut down.

In a job where husky men usually are calling the signals, this ramp rat is a standout. She's 21 year old Sue Vancil, a pretty college coed who traded a job in a dentist's office for the noisy world of airport runways.

Mrs. Vancil has been a ramp rat for United Air Lines since February, when she decided there wasn't enough action around the dentist's chair.

"There I had to wear a uniform and it was pretty much the same routine every day," she said. "Here I can wear my gubbies to work, every day is different and I really like being outdoors."

Some of her other duties involve tossing heavy suitcases, mailbags, crates, coffins and assorted other freight off and on planes.

"I've lost about 10 pounds since I started working here," Mrs. Vancil said. "I had quite a few bruises at first. But I've never really hurt myself with the heavy lifting. Two or three of us handle the really heavy items."

"And if I ever have trouble moving anything, I just brace my back against the sides of the cabin and above with my feet."

A senior at the University of Michigan branch in Flint, Mrs. Vancil attends class all morning, then reports to work at the airport later in the day.

She doesn't have far to go to work. She and her husband, Gary, who were married about three weeks after she started her job with United, live in a trailer park near the end of the airport runway.

He works as a night stock manager at a Flint grocery store and attends Genesee Community College.

Shouted warnings, but too late

Bugging witness tells arrests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The star government witness at the Watergate bugging trial testified Friday he watched helplessly from across the street, while police moved in to arrest President Nixon's campaign security chief planting a bug at Democratic headquarters.

The witness, former FBI agent Alfred C. Baldwin III, said he shouted warnings over a walkie-talkie but it was too late.

"A voice came on the radio saying in a whisper, 'They've got us,'" Baldwin said.

His testimony on the 10th day of the Watergate trial was the most damaging yet to the two remaining defendants in the alleged bugging attempt, James W. McCord Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy.

McCord was security coordinator for Nixon's re-election campaign when police arrested him and four other men before dawn June 17 inside the Watergate complex offices of the Democratic National Committee. Liddy then was a financial counsel to the re-election committee.

Of the seven men later charged with conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping, five have pleaded guilty — former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr. and the four men arrested at the Watergate with McCord.

Baldwin told how he watched police from a balcony of a Howard Johnson's hotel across the street, where McCord had installed him three weeks before to monitor conversations on tapped telephones at Democratic headquarters.

The night of the raid, he said, McCord came to the room, built a bugging device, shed all his personal identification, handed him a walkie-talkie with orders to call immediately if anything "unusual" happened, then crossed the street to the Watergate.

A little after 2 a.m., he said, he saw an unmarked car pull up and three men get out dressed in casual clothes.

"A few minutes later, lights went on in the reception area (of Democratic headquarters) and two of the gentlemen went out on the balcony with guns drawn . . .," Baldwin said.

"I GOT ON the walkie-talkie and called 'Base to Unit One. Base to any unit.' Somebody answered and I asked if our people were dressed or in casual clothes. They said 'We're dressed in suits — Why?' and I said, 'Well, we've got some trouble. There are some people there in casual clothes and they've got weapons drawn.'"

Moments later, Baldwin said, he saw uniformed police arrive. Then two men dressed in dark suits left the Watergate coming toward him down an alley.

"One of them looked up at the balcony where I was standing and it was Mr. Hunt," he said. "The other was Mr. Liddy, although I couldn't be absolutely positive of that because he didn't look up at me as Mr. Hunt did."

Baldwin, of Hamden, Conn., who has been promised immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony, said Hunt joined him breathlessly a few minutes later. He used the bathroom and the telephone, then instructed him to pack up the electronic gear and take it to Mc-

Cord's home in suburban Maryland, Baldwin said.

THE U.S. Court of Appeals ruled 2-1, meanwhile, the actual contents of the conversations Baldwin monitored from the tapped telephone of R. Spencer Oliver, a Democratic Party official, could not be admitted as evidence, to do so, the court said, would "frustrate the purpose of Congress in making wiretapping a crime."

Chief Prosecutor Earl J. Silbert, who had argued at least some of the contents were vital to the government's case, said he would decide over the weekend whether to appeal the decision to the Supreme Court.

Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica recessed the trial at noon until Monday so court employees could have a half-day inaugural holiday. He also arranged for the sequestered jurors to watch the inaugural parade from fourth-floor windows of the district court building.

Ellsberg lawyer says 'secrets' were easily available for $6

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

A defense attorney in the Pentagon Papers trial said Friday that information described by a government witness as secret was published by the government in a report that could be bought by anyone for $6.

The point was brought out during cross examination of a high Army staff officer who testified earlier that Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo could have been helping the enemy by releasing a top secret report written in 1968 by Gen. Earl Wheeler, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The report assessed effectiveness of North Vietnamese troops and American forces during the 1968 Tet offensive. The witness, Lt. Gen. William DePuy, testifying for the government, said such information would be highly "useful" to North Vietnam in planning another similar attack, such as one conducted last spring.

ELLSBERG, 41, and Russo, 36, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak to news media of top secret documents detailing origins of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. The government seeks to show the papers shouldn't have been made public.

At the start of the session, attorney Leonard Weinglass, representing Russo, produced a copy of a public report written by Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of American troops in Vietnam in 1968.

Westmoreland's report, pages of which were shown to jurors on large slides, contained several facts identical to those in the Wheeler report. DePuy acknowledged this, but insisted that the totality of the Wheeler report still was more important than the Westmoreland report.

"An isolated fact or piece of information has very limited importance," DePuy said of one section, an assessment of North Vietnamese troop capabilities repeated in the published report.

"But in the context of the Wheeler report it has many implications and that's important . . . as the statement of the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, then that's an important document."

AS WEINGLASS showed several slides identical information in the Wheeler and Westmoreland reports, he suddenly stunned courtroom viewers by flashing on the screen a New York Times headline dated March 10, 1968, which said, "Westmoreland requests 206,000 more troops."

DePuy had testified that the request for those troops was part of the classified report.

"That's not in evidence!" shouted government prosecutor David Nissen, jumping to his feet as the headline appeared. The jury was quickly dismissed from the room and U.S. District Court Judge

Matt Byrne said he would hear arguments on whether the headline should be allowed in evidence at this time.

Nissen angrily accused the defense of using "cheap tricks" and the judge told Weinglass it was "highly improper" to show the headline before formally introducing it as evidence.

But after lengthy arguments Byrne admitted the news story and it was shown to jurors again. However, Byrne refused to allow Weinglass to use a portion of a 1972 book, "The Diffusion of Power," by former President Johnson's special assistant, Walter Rostow. Weinglass said it too spoke of the Wheeler report.

DePuy said he vaguely recalled the news story. "I recollect that information regarding the 206,000 request found its way into the press," he said.

'Top secret' tag stripped from old study of USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has stripped the "top secret" wraps from a controversial 15-year-old national security report picturing a rising threat from a nuclear armed Soviet Union "which may become critical in 1959 or early 1960."

The Gaither report, as it became known during the 1957 row over defense spending, proposed to President Eisenhower urgent U.S. weapons and civil-defense programs with a price tag of up to $44 billion over a five-year period.

"THE NEXT two years seem to us critical," concluded the blue ribbon citizens panel headed by H. Rowan Gaither Jr. in its report dated Nov. 7, 1957.

"If we fail to act at once, the risk, in our opinion, will be unacceptable," it said.

The main points of the 40-page study soon leaked to the press at the time. But Eisenhower, while accepting some of its recommendations and rejecting others, turned down pleas from then Vice President Nixon and various others to make the report public.

Eisenhower relates in his book "Waging the Peace, 1953-61," that he ruled out publication on grounds confidential advice must remain confidential if the President wants to continue to get it.

EISENHOWER also was fighting pressure for a big boost in federal spending. And he said he wanted to avoid panic amidst the furor following the Soviets' launching of the first Sputnik satellite in October, 1957.

Release of the Gaither report is the first decision handed down by the new Inter-Agency Classification Review Committee headed by John S. D. Eisenhower, son of the former President, a spokesman said.

The committee is the final judge under the revamped classification system put into effect by Nixon last June. Under it, secret papers at least 10 years old are supposed to be made public upon request unless an official review finds to the contrary.

Even on an historic document a decade and a half old, whose contents have been generally known, the John Eisenhower committee had to overrule opposition inside today's National Security Council to yanking off the secrecy stamp.

Some officials were said to feel that publication might harm U.S.-Soviet relations and the strategic arms talks in particular.

Nixon was said to have taken no personal role in the declassification decision.

President Eisenhower named the panel of prominent citizens under Gaither, then Board Chairman of the Ford Foundation, in May 1957 to study using new technological means of defense against nuclear attack.

WHEN Gaither fell ill Robert C. Sprague, Chairman of the Sprague Electric Co., became panel director.

The report said "USSR intentions are expansionist, and her great efforts to build military power go beyond any concepts of Soviet defense . . ."

"The evidence clearly indicates an increasing threat which may become critical in 1959 or early 1960."

Its recommendations ranged from stepping up the alert of U.S. defense to increasing U.S. counter-strike capability and building fallout shelters for the civilian populace.

Gravel urges secrecy limit on documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only documents relating to national defense could be classified, and then only for a period of two years, under a proposal made Friday by Sen. Mike Gravel.

The Alaska Democrat, who stirred up a storm in the last Congress by reading from Vietnam war documents classified as secret, outlined the proposal he drafted for a special Senate committee.

The 10-member bipartisan committee, of which he is a member, was created by the Senate to submit recommendations with respect to the classification of government documents and their handling by the Senate or individual senators.

Decorated soldier released as CO

OAKLAND (UPI) — A much-decorated veteran of the Vietnam war and one-time member of the White House security detail was honorably discharged from the Army Friday as a conscientious objector.

Sgt. Ernest R. Pounder, 28, was handed his discharge papers and a letter of appreciation from the President, routine for discharged soldiers, as he was released from the Army four years before his enlistment was to end.

WITH his wife, Christa, and six children, he planned to return home to Peoria, Ill., to look for a job and a house.

Pounder's discharge came four days after his "personal deadline" of Jan. 15 to withdraw from military life in protest against America's part in the Vietnam war.

Most of his 12 years in the Army were with the special forces.

Pounder was a member of the security detail for President Kennedy's visit to Ireland in June, 1963.

Pounder said it was the unsuccessful Son Tay raid to rescue prisoners of war that was the beginning of his display of "antiwar feelings and sentiments." But he said he re-enlisted in the Army in 1971 for six more years to "try and get back in step."

He was sent to Hawaii to teach counterinsurgency and commando tactics but in July last year, he said, "I couldn't face the classes any more because I didn't believe in what we were doing."

2 get prison terms for fake 'D. B. Cooper' story

SEATTLE (AP) — Two Washington men were sentenced to prison terms Friday on convictions of selling a fake "D. B. Cooper" interview to a Los Angeles journalist.

U.S. District Court Judge Walter T. McGovern sen-

Nevada senator

denies evasion

of tax charges

RENO (UPI)—State Sen. Stanley Drakulich, D-Sparks, pleaded innocent Friday to charges of failure to file income tax returns for 1968 and 1969.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson set June 4 for trial.

The U.S. attorney's office filed the charges last month following an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service. The information alleged that Drakulich's gross income was $14,410 for 1968 and $15,037 for 1969 and that he failed to file income tax returns for those years.

Drakulich is an insurance agent.

tenced William "Jack" Lewis, 33, of Seabeck, to three-year terms on each of four fraud convictions. The terms will run concurrently.

Donald S. Murphy, 50, of Silverdale, was sentenced to two-year terms on each of three counts. His terms also will be served concurrently.

The pair was convicted last month on fraud charges stemming from their sale to a former Newsweek contributing editor, Karl Fleming, of Los Angeles, of a fake interview with the man who hijacked a Northwest Airlines jetliner over the Pacific Northwest on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971, then parachuted from the plane with a ransom. The man, who gave his name as D. B. Cooper, never was found.

Lewis and Murphy were released on their personal recognizance, provided they surrender in 10 days to begin their sentences.

The judge asked them if they had paid back the $30,000 they received from Fleming. The men said they had not.

Protests hit HEW on aid cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Friday it has received nearly 150 formal objections to its threat to withhold nearly 500 million a year in federal welfare funds from states as a penalty for failing to weed out overpaid and ineligible recipients.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said it has heard from 15 governors, 27 congressmen, 81 state and local welfare agencies, 11 organizations and 9 citizens.

Many of the governors agreed that payment errors must be corrected, HEW said, but none endorsed the proposed crackdown as presented.

Government officials have been meeting with state welfare administrators through a committee representing the American Public Welfare Association, to discuss possible changes in regulations that would foster improved local control of welfare eligibility.

"There certainly will be some changes in regulations," said a spokesman for HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, but he declined to be specific.

Final regulations are scheduled to take effect no later than April 1.

Billy the First — Sunday When fabled evangelist hit Des Moines in 1914

(This is the first of a series of articles on fabled evangelist Billy Sunday, based in part on a collection of his sermons during a 1914 campaign in Des Moines, Iowa.)

By LES RODNEY

"I was born and bred, not in old Kentucky, though my father was a Kentuckian, but in old Iowa. I am a rube of the rubes. I am a hayseed of the hayseeds, and the malodors of the barnyard are on me yet, and it beats Pinaud and Colgate, too. I have greased my hair with goose grease and blacked my boots with stove blacking. I have wiped my old proboscis with a gummy-sack towel; I have drunk coffee out of my saucer, and I have eaten with my knife. I have crept and crawled out from the university of poverty and hard knocks, and have taken post graduate courses. I have said 'done it' when I should have said 'did it' and I 'have seen' and I expect to go to heaven just the same."

This was Billy Sunday talking about himself. Bulldog-faced former big league baseball player. Rough, tough, plain talking and crude. Yet a man who could speak with perceptive eloquence about Shakespeare, Milton, Emerson.

BILLY SUNDAY knew the Americans of his time and didn't believe in wasting his message of sin and redemption by pitching it over anyone's head. He was a pulpit populist. In a day when higher education was far less widespread than today, he concentrated on down-to-earth contact with God's common man as he actually existed.

To use one of his own popular phrases, you may bet your sweet life that if the shrewd Mr. Sunday was alive today, he would adjust his style to 1973's most productive wave lengths. Just as "the second Billy"—Graham—has refined his techniques for maximum effect over the years.

Sunday's impact on his time—at least in this country—bears comparison with that of Graham today. It has been estimated that by the time of his death in 1935 (he was born under President Lincoln, died under President Franklin Roosevelt) he had preached to more than 100 million Americans, mostly in person, with some assist from early radio in his later years. For what such figures are worth, he has been credited with nearly a quarter of a million personal conversions.

Thanks to a former reader of this newspaper, the late Rolfe Keepers, and through the kindness of his daughter, Doris Keepers Woods of Long Beach, we have a collection of Billy's sermons preached during a mammoth seven-week crusade in Des Moines in 1914. (In fact, we have had it for some years, and owe its owners an apology for not having gotten around to using it sooner, and returning it!)

THE BROWN, fraying columns of small newspaper from the Des Moines Register were pasted into a business ledger by Mr. Keepers. They leap across the 59 years—two cataclysmic World Wars, the depression, population explosion, Vietnam and space age away—with the evangelist's unmistakable excitement.

The Rev. William Ashley Sunday was 52 years old when he hit Des Moines like it had never been hit before.

Preaching day and night in a constantly packed, specially built tabernacle seating 7,500, he stormed up and down the platform scolding, insulting, imploring and demanding. He had to change his sweat soaked business suit after each meeting, the Register reported.

'LOOK OUT, DEVIL!' A Typical Sunday Stance, 1914

Before Billy Sunday left Des Moines, 10 per cent of the population of that cornland metropolis had "hit the sawdust trail," marching, shuffling and running forward to grasp his waiting hand and tell him they accepted Christ as their Saviour.

Many of these were children, notes the Register, and others were backslid church members, "but thousands were men and women of mature years who acted upon a conviction that will endure."

What was the content of this successful preaching? His message was basically biblical and fundamental, that old time religion. The Bible, he said, "is the only book that tells us of a God that we can love, a heaven to win, a hell to shun, and a Saviour that can save."

BUT MANY preachers put their audiences asleep with that same message. His worst enemies—and he had them—never accused Billy Sunday of being dull.

"On the day of Pentecost one sermon saved 3,000 lives," he observed in one sermon. "Now it takes 3,000 sermons to save one old buttermilk-eyed, whisky-soaked old blasphemer." He didn't tell the good people of Des Moines that all they had to do was go to church.

"Lots of people join the church for the same motive that a man blows up a safe," he barked. "For what he can get out of it." And—"The bars of the church are so low now that any old hog can come and root and crawl in. Any old lobster with two or three suits of clothes and a bank account can break into most any church."

Fifty five years before the "God Is Dead" fuss, he told his audience: "Don't worry; God's never taken the count yet and He never will."

He also came close to anticipating the modern phrase "It's as simple as that" in a sermon defending revivals. "A revival," he said, "brings the unsaved to Jesus Christ. It just as much horse sense as that."

The fast-talking, quick-witted Sunday could turn popular notions upside down, like the one that skeptics were more intelligent and knowledgeable than Bible believers. "Skeptics don't believe in the Bible. Why? Because they don't know enough to believe in the Bible, that's all. Your father and your grandfather didn't believe in the trolley car, nor in the automobile, nor in the battleships, nor in the submarine torpedo boats, nor in electric lights." He was not exactly one to butter up his audience. "There's not a preacher in this town," he said, "who won't put up his dukes and fight for Christ if you'll only get behind him. They would be doing it now, only some of you old fossilized, antiquated old hypocrites begin to snort, snarl and whine when they go after some of your pet sins. But I don't owe you anything. I'll skin you before I get through."

CALLED BY some a mountebank and a vulgar clown, the Rev. Billy did indeed lay it on a bit thick at times. But he inspired respect and admiration in many folks, which hasn't diminished to this day.

"I knew Mr. Sunday personally and he was a wonderful man as well as a wonderful evangelist," Mr. Keepers told me before he passed on. "I met him when he arrived in Marshalltown to preach in 1908. I helped to build the tabernacle for him. It was his home town earlier in life when he worked in a furniture store. He was on the baseball team in Marshalltown then too, before he went into the big leagues.

"My wife and I had heard his booze sermon in another city. It was printed in a little book that I still have, dated 1908. His good work is not just history to me, I saw it happen in Marshalltown. That's why later in Des Moines I kept all his sermons and put them in a book. I look at the young people today, where are they heading? We need more ministers and evangelists like Billy Sunday to fill our hearts with love and hope instead of booze and dope. He should not be forgotten."

Born in a log cabin in Ames, Iowa one year after the start of the Civil War, Sunday played the outfield for the White Sox, Pirates and Phillies from 1883 through 1890, a most unusual preparation for the preaching ministry. Did the salty rough and tumble of those years of bus, train, hotel, ballpark and raucous crowd, in intimate camaraderie with men of all kinds, add something to his later outreach empathy which no seminary could provide? Incidentally, the father of Ben Zinser, this paper's medical-science editor, crossed paths with Sunday on the diamond and won a little place in the sports ledgers. The late Arthur L. Zinser, a baseball star at Iowa State who went on to a career in law, fanned the mighty Billy in a big semi-pro game at Storm Lake.

SUNDAY BEGAN his formal preaching career in a church in Garner, Iowa in 1896, first revival meeting in what was to be a stormy 40-year ministry. (Continued A-10, Col. 4)

KEY 73 BRINGS 'EM TOGETHER

Mayor Ed Wade chats about Key 73 Proclamation, which he holds, with representatives of three Christian groups, Mrs. Thomas T. Sato, president of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches; Msgr. Ernest J. Gualderon, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church; and Rev. Dale Aycock, pastor of First Southern Baptist Church and moderator of his denomination's Long Beach-Harbor Area Assn. Proclamation announces unanimous City Council approval of designating noon of Sunday, Jan. 28 to Feb. 4th as "Noon Prayer Call," and urges everyone "to stop whatever they are doing at noon on those days and pray that millions will participate in repentance and prayer for 1973, signaling the same by ringing church bells, sounding of carillon chimes, and factory claxons."

GOINGS ON

Gospel Concerts presents tonight at 7:30 in Municipal Auditorium, Hovie Lister and the Statesmen, J.D. Summer and the Stamps Quartet, the McDuff Brothers and the Singing Speer Family. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

Evangelist Joe Boyd of Corpus Christi, Tex. will hold revival services tonight and Sunday, 7 p.m. in Community Bible of Norwalk, 12226 Alondra Blvd. Mrs. Camille Svenson will lecture on "The Esoteric Teachings of H.P. Blavatsky" Sunday, 3 p.m. at the Theosophical Society, YWCA building, 6th and Pacific.

Lakewood Foursquare, 3445 Studebaker Road, is host tonight at 7 to the Crown Singers Gospel Quartet, the Family Choir from Berkeley and the Four Square Four, with all invited. "Show Me," a Christian musical drama, will be presented Sunday, 7 p.m. in Grace Baptist of Downey, 7948 E. Quail S.T.

Billy Sunday

try. As he tells of his transformation from ballplayer to preacher, he was on a weekend bender with some of his teammates when he came upon the Pacific Gardens Mission in downtown Chicago. In typical fashion, he enjoyed dramatizing the moment, like this: "Twenty seven years ago I left that little group on the corner of State and Van Buren Streets and walked in the little mission and fell on my knees and staggered out of sin and into the arms of the Saviour."

He was rough on the evils of booze all his career, and undoubtedly played a significant role in Prohibition becoming the law of the land in 1919. "I notice," he would say with the sarcasm he used to good effect, "that the man who says he can take it or let it alone, he never lets it alone." The drunkard, he was fond of repeating, begins with the moderate drinker. He scoured churchgoers who kept liquor around the house where their youngsters would get an idea drinking had to be respectable. In his famous "booze" sermon, he would compile statistics of crimes and broken homes directly related to drinking in that given locality, plus the cost of maintaining alcoholics.

Sunday was a Presbyterian, though like all the great evangelists his sermons never went into denominational distinctions, and he sought and obtained cooperation of local churches of all branches of Protestantism. The national office couldn't have cared much for the withering scorn he directed against "churchianity," like: "We've got churches, lots of them. We've got preachers, seminaries, and they are turning out preachers and putting them into little theological molds and keeping them there until they get cold enough to practice preaching."

They couldn't have liked his truculent rejection of questions on what he did with incoming funds. He was finally booted out of the church during World War 1 when he punctuated a discussion about that conflict with the cry "God damn the kaiser!"

THE DWINDLING number who remember Billy first hand usually think he could give cards and spades (oops, Billy wouldn't like that phrase, he was death on card playing) to any other preacher before or since his time. The memory, of course, plays tricks. One tends to remember selectively. The natural tendency of old timers to think their heroes better than today's — in baseball, football or the pulpit — should probably be taken into account. Still — the old sermons do crackle with honey life, and some of the tributes are pretty impressive.

A few years ago when we thought we were going to crack that old ledger and write these articles, we ran a little note asking if anyone in these parts had personal recollections of the Rev. Billy. We got some interesting notes and phone calls.

Evangelist Phil Tilden, director of public relations at California Baptist College, Riverside, will lead a revival campaign Sunday through Jan. 28, at 7:30 each night in West Lakewood Baptist Church, 5121 Hayter Ave.

Christian youth group hits war

The General Assembly of the World Student Christian Federation, meeting in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, unanimously passed a resolution calling for "immediate unconditional cessation of all acts of aggression" in Indochina and a "total withdrawal of the United States and her allies" from that region, according to Stephen M. Larson, the Chicago-based staff director of the Lutheran Student Movement.

An 18-member American delegation to the international meeting also delivered a letter protesting the war to Ross Adair, U.S. Ambassador to Ethiopia.

The General Assembly, which included delegations from Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America, the Middle East, and North America, said in its resolution that it "condemns the United States' bombing of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, particularly the populous areas of Hanoi and Haiphong, as a demonic act totally opposed to the fundamental rights of man."

The resolution also asked South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to "release all political prisoners being held in South Vietnamese prisons."

The American students addressing the letter to the U.S. embassy declared "the harm we have inflicted on Indochina is clear. The harm inflicted on the United States is less visible but no less real. The moral cost alone is incalculable."

"In the name of God and our common, worldwide humanity, this war must be stopped and a peace treaty must be signed immediately."

Stopping the war will not be enough, the letter asserted. "The devastation inflicted by us must be repaired."

REV. MEETHER

Welcome new pastor at St. Paul's Lutheran

Rev. John T. Meether will be installed as new pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 2283 Palo Verde Ave., Sunday at 3 p.m.

A native of Iowa who received his education at the University of South Dakota, St. John's College of Winfield, Kans., and graduated in 1959 from Concordia Seminary, Pastor Meether pastored churches in Nebraska until 1989 when he came to Zion Lutheran at Blythe, Calif., where he also served as counselor of the district for the Missouri Synod.

Rev. Stuart W. Nothnagel, interim pastor the past three months, will officiate as liturgist in Sunday's ceremony. Dr. Arnold G. Kuntz, president of the Synod's Southern California District, will speak. Rev. Walter M. Fehner, circuit counselor for the Long Beach area churches, will be officiant.

A reception honoring Rev. Meether and his family will follow the service.

Always on Monday—Mormon families enjoy get-togethers

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

A child gets his most important religious instruction at home. It is very difficult for Sunday School or any other agency of the church to communicate Christian faith to boys and girls who haven't been exposed to it through family life.

All denominations agree on this. One denomination — the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — is doing something effective to help families fulfill their role in the religious nurture of children.

Every Monday, in some 350,000 Mormon homes around the world, parents and children join in observing "Family Home Evening."

The LDS Church annually distributes to all its families a handsomely illustrated manual, prepared by professional educators. It contains a year's supply of lessons, discussion starters, teaching games, visual aids and props to make it easy for any father to preside over a family home evening. A foreword emphasizes that these are merely suggestions. It's up to each Mormon family to plan its own home evenings, and the manual says they should be fun for all members of the family.

Those activities I have attended in Mormon homes were indeed fun. They included singing, guitar playing, and games, with refreshments at the end. The whole family always participates — from the oldest to the youngest. If any member has a grievance against any other member, or if there is a family decision to be made, home evening is the time to bring it up and thresh it out.

The most impressive aspect of a Mormon family home evening, to an outsider observer, is the apparently natural, unselfconscious and willing way in which older teenagers participate. They don't get uptight over talking about God or prayer or moral problems in front of their parents and brothers and sisters because they've been doing it all their lives.

Mormon home evenings were inaugurated on a church-wide basis in 1915. Since 1965, the 3-million-member church has given high priority to extending the practice into every Mormon home on a regular weekly basis.

Essential to the program is keeping Monday night sacrosanct for this purpose. No Mormon church is allowed to schedule any activity on a Monday evening. Any public school that offers Monday night competition to family home evening in a community that has a substantial number of Mormons is likely to get sharp complaints.

LDS President Harold B. Lee is a strong proponent of the home evening concept. He told a group of Mormon leaders recently that "the most important of the Lord's work will be that which we do within our own homes."

Lee says family home evenings not only are an invaluable opportunity for religious instruction. They also serve to unite families, to bridge generation gaps, and to maintain communication between parents and children.

"When the home functions properly, much has been done to prevent problems from happening," The Mormon president told UPI.

The Mormons don't have — and don't want — a patent on this excellent idea. They'll be glad to share with any other denomination or local church what they've learned in the past 58 years about how to launch and operate such a program.

Concordia faculty tells faith

The faculty of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, engaged in a schism-threatening rhabarbar with the president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, this week released to the church a 200-page document entitled "Faithful to our Calling — Faithful to our Lord."

This fulfilled an earlier pledge "to present to the synod detailed evidence of our own solid Lutheran convictions." Designed to serve as a basis for discussion forums in the church, the document follows the historic Lutheran confessional pattern and, for the most part, is based on the format of the Nicene Creed. It also deals with the theological issues under discussion in the synod today.

Forty four of the 47 faculty members signed the affirmation of their faith. One who did not, and asked that his name be listed as "opposing the joint confession" was Dr. Robert Preuss, brother of the denomination's president.

COLLINS NAMED AS DIRECTOR

Rev. Dr. H. Frank Collins, pastor of the 2,200-member Calvary Baptist Church of Bellflower, has been named a director of California Graduate School of Theology in Glendale, and will also serve in several classes as a guest lecturer. He has been a trustee for Bob Jones University, director for Pacific Coast Baptist Bible College, and before coming to Bellflower was assistant to the president of Baptist Bible College in Springfield, Mo. The Glendale school provides continuing education for ministers.

Are you lonely? Do you know why? Is there a disciplined answer to loneliness? Yes. We need not live alone. We may live by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God. Jesus was alone; yet he said, "For I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me." Jesus said to us, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." If you are lonely, relax in the Word and rest in the Lord.

Dr. Frank Collins
Alvin Dark is a name recognized by everyone in the sports world. As manager of the Cleveland Indians and player and manager for the Giants, his name became a household word to millions.
But Alvin Dark's interest goes beyond sports to things that are not settled on a ball field, but at a place called Calvary. His personal faith in Christ is a great testimony to the athletic world. He is very active in Christian Athletic Association, and, like Jimmy King (a former member of Calvary) he makes many church appearances in behalf of his faith in Christ.
HE WILL BE AT CALVARY THIS SUNDAY NIGHT! Don't miss his stirring testimony for Christ. I am sure that his fans are numbered in the thousands in this area. See him up close! Shake hands with him! And listen to what he says about Christ THIS SUNDAY NIGHT at Calvary!
Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

POLICEMAN SLAIN in shootout with gunmen barricaded in a Brooklyn sporting goods store is sprawled in street Friday as other policemen in bulletproof vests hide behind a

NEW YORK CITY GUN BATTLE

ing a portable loudspeaker, asked the gunmen to release one hostage to negotiate.

Shooting broke out again shortly after 10:15 p.m.

Police Lt. Edward Haddican, one of the first at the scene, said that three hours after the men took over the store, police had assembled "everything to go in after them — tear gas, sniper rifles, shotguns and we've got men in every square foot of this area.

"They'll never get out."

"I was one of the first on the scene," Haddican said, "and with about four others . . . patrolmen we set up behind two or three radio cars across the street directly opposite the store . . . There was a blaze, a mess of gunfire coming from the store. They were using everything at us — shotguns, high-powered rifles.

"As I was crouching behind my patrol car the officer (who was later slain) was next to me — and all of a sudden a bullet from nowhere came out in this blaze and hit him right in the head. He slumped, over, dead."

The area was cordoned off. Adjacent shops were kept dark at police order and street lights — which might illuminate crouching policemen — were turned off. Subway service on the overhead tracks was suspended.

Hundreds of residents stood in a driving rain behind police barricades, craning to get a glimpse of the action. In nearby stores, merchants locked their doors and kept low.

COUNTDOWN TO TRUCE CLAIMED

new's office said it knew of no such plans.

Optimism mounted in world capitals following Thursday's simultaneous Hanoi-Washington announcement that Kissinger and Thieu would resume their private negotiations next week in Paris to "complete the text" of a peace agreement.

BUT THE WAR in Vietnam went on. South Vietnamese marines turned back four assaults by Communist troops and tanks on the fortified northern front Friday. A fleet of U.S. jets and offshore gunboats joined the northern battles by pounding targets in the narrow band of Communist-held territory below the demilitarized zone.

In Saigon, the newspaper Tin Song, financed by Hoang Duc Nha, President Nguyen Van Thieu's nephew and closest adviser, said a cease-fire could go into effect at the beginning of the Tet lunar new year, Feb. 3.

Once a cease-fire is declared, the newspaper said, the Saigon government probably will impose a 24-hour curfew requiring South Vietnam's 18 million residents to remain in their homes.

Lam, asked by newsmen if a cease-fire could come by Tet, replied: "I do not want to be a prophet, so I do not want to guess about the date for a cease-fire." But later he added, "The only thing I can say is we are very close."

LAM SAID South Vietnam was asking for "clarification" of some points in the revised draft agreement but added "frankly, I can't reveal to you what Gen. Haig brought to President Thieu or what he took back."

A White House spokesman confirmed Haig would return to Saigon today from Bangkok. President Nixon's peace envoy conferred with Cambodian, Laos and Thailand — the three other nations involved in the Indochina war — after leaving Saigon Thursday morning. Haig met with Thieu Tuesday and Wednesday.

In Bangkok Prime Minister Thanom said after meeting with Haig that North and South Vietnamese have yielded to some conditions," said Thanom. "The South Vietnamese have yielded to some conditions. So, it seems to be closing to its final stages."

THE THAI prime minister also said that as matters now stood, a cease-fire would not be simultaneous throughout Indochina. It would come first in Vietnam and follow later in Laos and Cambodia, probably in about 10 days.

In Vientiane Laotian Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma said he requested a quick cease-fire in Laos after a Vietnam truce during consultations with Haig.

He said he believed the Vietnam peace agreement will be in about this month and that a Laos cease-fire will follow, but said he was not sure of the exact date for the signing of the peace agreement.

Search for missing boat to continue

No home town was available for Evans. The Air Force said the names of the other 21 men would be withheld because no charges ever were filed against them.

Air Force officials also said there were other cases of men refusing to fly elsewhere in the world, principally from fear of flying. But they did not know how many instances there were.

The 23 cases were cited after a study of the records covering Southeast Asia since the bombing of North Vietnam began in 1964. The report covered only Air Force flyers and did not include Navy aviators.

Man found stabbed to death in auto

EMERYVILLE (UPI) — Wah Ham, 30, was found stabbed to death Friday in his car.

Police said a passerby found the body. They said he had been stabbed through the heart and his wallet and pockets had been rifled. There were no suspects.

A Coast Guard air search Friday in the Gulf of California turned up no trace of a troubled boat which broadcast a cryptic Mayday message picked up by a ham radio operator in Florida.

Coast Guard spokesmen said a search plane from San Francisco and a helicopter from San Diego joined forces in the search of gulf waters 400 miles south of the California border.

The spokesman said a ham radio operator was monitoring calls at his Miami, Fla., station before dawn Friday morning when he picked up the emergency broadcast — apparently sent about 7:40 a.m. PST.

"MAYDAY — Contact the Coast Guard—Contact the Coast Guard," the voice came riding over heavy static. "I'm off the coast of Santa Rosalia (on the Baja peninsula), I think. I have four on board. I'm the Janice Lee

At that point, said the spokesman, static drowned out the voice.

Nation's economy at year-end in best showing since 1966

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's economy closed out 1972 in a state of strong expansion after turning in its best performance in one year, since 1966, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The department reported that Gross National Product, market value of the nation's output of goods and services, grew at a 6.5 per cent rate last year while inflation rose 3 per cent.

THE FINAL three months of the year was even more expansive, with total output gaining by 8.5 per cent. Prices in the final quarter edged up by 2.7 per cent.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said that 1972 was a "remarkably good year for the economy."

"The improvement in GNP last year translated into significantly higher living standards for the average American," he said. Stein was particularly happy since GNP, the broadest measure of the economy, exceeded the estimates that his council made at this time a year ago. The council's early 1972 projection looked for a 6 per cent growth rate, with inflation at 3.25 per cent.

ECONOMIC output, reflecting brisk consumer buying and business inventory buildup, rose by $102 billion during the year to an average of $1.152 trillion. This was a good $4 billion over the administration forecast.

But the current rapid economic expansion is causing the administration's policymakers to worry about an overheated economy in 1973, triggering a new round of inflation.

"To counter that possibility, the administration is ready to impose $10 billion in funds appropriated by Congress and to propose an extremely tight budget for fiscal 1974. Controlling federal deficit spending is regarded as one of the key ways of avoiding a buildup in inflationary pressures.

Also, the Federal Reserve Board has begun to tighten up somewhat on supplying the economy with money in hopes that it can take some of the heat out of the expansion and give Nixon's Phase 3 wage-price restraints some

The economic expansion helped to cut the unemployment rate from 6 per cent at the beginning of the year to slightly over 5 per cent at the end of the year.

Consumer prices rose about 3.5 per cent last year.

The administration said it wanted to reduce inflation.

tion, about 5 per cent in 1971, to below 3 per cent by the end of 1972.

Using the CPI yardstick, the GNP measurement meant the target was achieved.

But Nixon's economic advisers never would say which yardstick for inflation it meant when it announced the original goal last year.

Prices in several industries hiked as curbs are eased

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Prices began to move up this week in a variety of industries following a loosening of economic controls nine days ago by the Nixon administration.

Probably the most significant increase was a rise of 34 cent a gallon in the wholesale price of No. 2 fuel oil, announced Friday by the Mobil Oil Corporation. The fuel is primarily used to heat homes, and the 6 per cent increase is expected to be quickly adopted by other oil companies and passed along to home owners.

OTHER recent price increases have been announced for such varied products as newsprint, zinc, aluminum sheet and foil, sulfur, paperboard and record albums and tapes.

Businessmen and economists warned when Phase 3 was announced that there was likely to be a surge of price increases in the weeks ahead.

Prices are being raised quickly by some companies because they no longer have to wait for Price Commission approval.

Under the new regulations, prior approval of price increases is unnecessary, as long as they conform to the government's guidelines. Furthermore, profit margin restrictions have been loosened substantially.

Among the important increases were a 3 per cent or $5 a ton rise in newsprint prices by the International Paper Sales Company Inc. to customers in the United States effective Feb. 17.

A SPOKESMAN for the company said it had been preparing to ask for Price Commission approval of its increase when Phase 3 was announced. Because its calculations showed the increase to be allowable, the company was able to announce immediately, without waiting for government sanction.

The action followed increases made last December by competitors and raised prices from $165 a ton to $170 a ton.

Another major price increase this week was for zinc, which was raised 5.5 per cent by the American Smelting and Refining Company, after it had been blocked from taking such action during Phase 2.

The zinc price increase had been impossible under Phase 2 because it was not "cost justified."

American Smelting said in its announcement that it was taking the action as the result of a suggestion by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz that prices could be raised if it was necessary for "efficient allocation of resources or to maintain adequate levels of supply."

ANOTHER increase announced Friday was a 13 per cent rise in a corn syrup product widely used in manufacturing candy, ice cream and bread.

CPC International Inc. said the price of regular 42 D.E. 43 baume corn syrup would be increased to $4.30 per hundredweight, FOB its plant locations, effective Feb. 1.

The price of corn syrup has risen more than 28 per cent since the end of 1972, the company said, but is still well below levels of two years ago, and could have been increased even under the old Phase 2 rules without waiting.

9 killed, 3 injured in N.M. collision

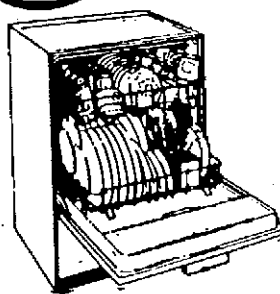

DEMING, N.M. (UPI) — Nine persons were killed and three others injured Friday night in the collision of two cars on Interstate 10 east of Deming.

The names of the victims and details of the accident weren't immediately available, a state police spokesman said. The accident involved two passenger cars.

IN THE STORM'S WAKE

There was a crisp chill on the wind Friday in Long Beach, but it only served to accent the suddenly clear air and the freshness that rainfall brings. The day brought people, like the couple above, out to look at some of the things we live with but rarely actually see — the color of the sea, the sharp clarity of the skyline against the deep, radiant blue of the sky, the way a seagull navigates the wind.

Aged faced with property taxes

Twenty-five elderly tenants of two city-owned apartment buildings at 67 and 73 Alamos Avenue have been billed by Los Angeles County for property taxes, although they are just renting their apartments.

John Erwin, assistant supervisor of Senior Opportunities and Services, 406 E. First St., who has offered to help the senior citizens, said each tenant has been billed for $12 as his share of the property tax.

The City of Long Beach, which purchased the buildings about two years ago for the proposed widening of Alamos Avenue, does not pay property taxes.

County Assessor Philip Watson contends the tenants have a "possessory interest" in the apartments, and therefore must pay the tax that the city is not required to pay.

City officials question the county's position, pointing out that the tenants are on a month-to-month lease, which does not seem to give them much "possessory interest."

The city manager's office said it is "not in sympathy" with the action of the assessor.

Watson's office said the tenants are getting lower rents than they normally would, because the city does not have to pay the property tax.

Clyde F. Seck of the city's Central Services Division, which manages the property, denied this. Seck said the tenants are paying the same rent they had paid to the former private owners.

One city official questioned why Watson's office would try to collect a property tax from senior citizens in the Long Beach-owned apartment buildings, but not from renters at the county-owned Carmelitos Housing Project.

The official, who asked that he not be identified, said that if the 25 elderly renters of the Alamos Avenue apartments just didn't pay the $12 property tax, he couldn't see what the county could do about it.

Usually, if a property owner fails to pay his tax, the county ultimately takes possession of the property.

"These people don't own anything," the Long Beach official pointed out.

Erwin said he will appear on behalf of the elderly tenants at a hearing by the county's Tax Appeals Board next Wednesday in the Hall of Administration in Los Angeles.

Although the $12 does not sound like much, Erwin said, it represents a large part of one month's income to elderly people on a fixed income.

Psychiatric studies set at Chino

Decorated Army vet gets life for murder

John R. "Big Savage" Bergen, 22, was sentenced to life in prison Friday for the murder of a Scottish merchant seaman whose body was found behind a downtown Long Beach hotel after he was fatally beaten in a room and robbed of $15.

Superior Court Judge Thomas F. McCarry denied defense motions for a new trial or reduction of the conviction from first to second degree murder before he imposed the sentence in his Los Angeles courtroom.

THE JUDGE also rejected a request to delay the sentencing and commit Bergen to the California

Institution for Men at Chino for 90 days for psychiatric evaluation.

However, McCarry directed Chino authorities to make special psychiatric studies of the defendant when he arrives at the prisoner reception center there.

Bergen, a decorated Army veteran with two Vietnam duty tours and two serious wounds, was convicted by McCarry in a nonjury trial in Long Beach Superior Court where the judge sat until the beginning of this year.

Three other defendants also face murder charges for the Aug. 8 slaying of Roderick MacLeod, 38, of Stormoway, Scotland, in the Deluxe Hotel, 147 E. Ocean Blvd.

REA M. "Gypsy Kitten" Strigano, 18, and Harold L. "Little Savage" Rakowicki, 20, are scheduled for trial Feb. 7 and Feb. 9 respectively before Superior Court Judge John A. Arguelles. Extradition proceedings are under way against the third, Don "Butch" Collette, who is jailed in St. Louis, Mo.

Bergen's only prior criminal record, according to a probation report, was an arrest in Illinois for carrying a blackjack five years ago, when he pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace.

The report said he spent 10 months in an Army hospital after one of his wounds and was awarded the Bronze Star and recommended for the Silver Star.

T. Montgomery new chairman

Travis Montgomery, vice president of Westgate-California Realty Co., has been elected chairman of the board of the Long Beach Redevelopment Agency.

J. Curtis Foster, pastor of Grace AME Church, was re-elected vice chairman.

Montgomery succeeds Thomas B. Forster as head of the five-man board. Other members are D. G. Quinlan and Aaron Herrington.

Montgomery was named by the Junior Chamber of Commerce as its "Young Man of the Year" in 1969. He is a trustee of St. Mary's Hospital, a member of the executive committee of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, and is affiliated with the local chapter of the American Cancer Society.

The Redevelopment Agency directs the renewal activities of the west beach project.

and was a member of a jury demonstration team, said the shooting occurred when two other men and Samuel's accompanied Samuel's stepdaughter, Rhonda Swift, 20, to the apartment. Drake said the woman was to pick up belongings because Drake was moving from the apartment where both were living.

Samuels' attorney, Brian Saylin, attempted to question the patient about an incident a day before the shooting in which Drake allegedly hit Samuels on the head with a hammer, but Spence ruled out the testimony as not sufficiently connected with the shooting charge.

The judge ordered Samuels to face trial before Superior Court Judge Pat Mullendore and allowed the defendant to remain free on $2,000 bail pending arraignment Feb. 2.

Gunshot victim says he was held while being shot

A partially paralyzed victim of six gunshot wounds testified at Memorial Hospital Friday that his girlfriend's stepfather held him by the head and shot him in the neck, then emptied a revolver into his back as he lay on the floor of his apartment.

Homar Drake, 29, told Long Beach Municipal Court Judge John Spence that six rounds fired by Roderick Antonio Samuels, 23, in the apartment at 4700 Clair Del Ave. Dec. 31 are still in his body.

The judge convened part of a preliminary hearing on assault with a deadly weapon charges against Samuels, of 6390 Rahn Ave., at the hospital to take testimony from the wheelchair-bound Drake, whose left leg and arm are paralyzed.

Wife of slain ex-mate held

Wanda Elene Davis, 26-year-old Wilmington resident, Friday afternoon was remanded to Sheriff's custody in lieu of $20,000 bail by Judge Walter Binns after her arraignment in his San Pedro courtroom on a murder charge.

Mrs. Davis was accused of the shotgun slaying of her ex-husband, Daniel Davis of 2417 Panama Ave., Carson, at 12:30 a.m. Thursday inside her home at 1053 Frigate Ave. The murder complaint was issued Friday morning by Dep. Dist. Atty. Thomas R. Simpson.

Police said Davis was killed by a single shotgun blast in the left chest. A preliminary hearing was set by Binns for Feb. 2.

Navy ready to bring PWs home

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

The Pacific Command is ready to comply with Vietnam troop withdrawals and to handle the homecoming for America's prisoners of war, Adm. Noel Gayler told a Los Angeles press conference Friday.

Gayler, who began his career in Long Beach on the battleship Maryland in 1935, added that the U.S. presence in the Pacific will "extend far beyond the end of the Vietnam war."

Gayler commands all U.S. forces in the Pacific Command, extending from the Western shores of North and South America to the eastern coast of Africa and includes two thirds of the world's population.

"Independence is the primary concern of Asia's states and that's why our responsibility extends beyond bringing the Vietnam war to a successful conclusion."

"We are wisely and properly, I believe, shifting from an era of confrontation with our adversaries in Asia to an era of negotiation. The presidential summit trips to Peking and Moscow may open new paths to world peace in Asia and elsewhere in this troubled world," Gayler said.

The admiral, who won three Navy Crosses as a World War II aviator, added "it still is a fact of life

Industry absenteeism up

Flu swamping L.B. hospitals

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

An influenza epidemic continues to boost absenteeism in industry and in the schools and is putting a strain on Long Beach hospitals, Dr. I. D. Litwak, city health officer, said Friday.

Hospitals are being swamped with flu problems, the health officer said, adding:

"If a catastrophe were to occur in Long Beach, we would have a real emergency, what with a shortage of hospital beds."

According to Dr. Litwak:

St. Mary's Hospital is treating numerous cases of flu, admitting about 20 patients daily. Normal admission rate is about seven a day.

At Long Beach Community Hospital, about one-half of those seen in the emergency room are flu victims. All beds are full.

At Memorial Hospital Medical Center, one-third of emergency-room patients have the flu, pneumonia or bronchitis. Admissions are running extremely high.

Long Beach Naval Hospital reported seeing 1,100 outpatients daily, 40 per cent of whom have the flu or other respiratory infections. The patient load is currently 200 a day higher than this time last year.

Los Altos Hospital said its patient load has increased, with many cases of flu.

Pacific Hospital of Long Beach reported the following comparative figures: In the first 15 days of December a total of 15 persons were seen on an outpatient basis for flu or pneumonia. During the first 15 days of January there were 116 such patients. Hospital admissions are now running 30 a day, with five of the 30 with influenza. Many employees are absent because of the flu.

At Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, Dr. E. A. Reed, chief of the outpatient service, said there has been an increase in "flu syndromes" in the past week. About 10 per cent of all patients seen have flu-like illnesses, he added. In addition, more pneumonia cases are being admitted compared to a month ago, and the hospital's personnel physician is reporting flu symptoms among employees. E. J. Klag, hospital director, said that there is an unusual degree of absenteeism among employees.

In industry, absenteeism is up from a normal three per cent to nine per cent, according to Dr. Litwak. The city health department's flu surveillance of industry includes the Long Beach Naval Shipyard and other large payrolls in the city.

High school absences have reached 14.2 per cent, and those in elementary schools total 9.6 per cent. Most are due to flu-like illness.

Dr. Litwak said there have been five additional deaths in the city from pneumonia in the past three days.

Deaths from flu itself total four. In six deaths, influenza has been listed as a contributory factor.

Dr. Litwak's advice to influenza victims follows:

- Stay home.
- Go to bed and rest.
- Keep away from crowds.
- Phone your doctor.

Apartment buildings in Wrigley area OK'd

Two apartment projects near the northeast edge of the Wrigley District, both on property zoned for R-2 residential use, have been approved by the Long Beach Planning Commission.

One of the apartment buildings, to be erected for owner George C. Brower at 195 W. 31st St., was approved on a 5-2 vote. Commissioners Dwight E. Bennett and Joseph T. Brooks Jr. opposed the special permit.

BENNETT conceded that the triangular property had a "unique configuration," but added, "I fail to see that the uniqueness of size and shape is license to shoo horn in every possible unit."

The building, to be erected by Statewide Developers, will contain 27 units and provide only 33 parking spaces, instead of the 41 spaces which normally would be required by such a development.

"Why not 20 units? Why not 30 parking spaces?" Bennett asked.

Commissioner Arnold Berg said he had talked with people in the neighborhood and many of them said they would prefer the apartment building to any kind of industrial development.

Arthur M. Archuleta, principal planner, said the staff had recommended approval because the property is somewhat isolated from adjacent residential areas, with a railroad right-of-way along one side. He said the staff felt sufficient on-street parking is available to justify the lesser off-street parking provided.

John Irwin, representing Statewide Developers, said that if a lower-density apartment complex were erected, they would have to go to a "cheaper" type of development.

THE OTHER project approved was for a 20-unit apartment complex at 3500

Cedar Ave., to be built for the A. S. Johnson Drilling Corp. Statewide Developers also is the contractor on this project.

Dr. Julian Feingold, representing Palmerest Convalescent Hospital and residential care facility, 3501 Cedar Ave., expressed concern about traffic problems in the area, which he said are "tremendously dangerous."

Bennett asked if the apartments would accept children, noting that Los Cerritos school already is crowded. Irwin said he would accept a restriction that only adults could occupy the apartment building, and this was made a condition of the approval.

L.B. oil development program cited by Hayes

Saying recognition was long overdue, Supervisor James Hayes Friday presented resolutions adopted recently by the Board of Supervisors lauding Thums Long Beach Company and two city agencies for their efforts in protecting the environment while developing the multi-billion-barrel oil field beneath the city.

Hayes presented resolutions to Long Beach City

Councilman Russell Rubley, who accepted the document on behalf of Mayor Edwin Wade who was ill.

A group of about 75 city officials and representatives of the petroleum industry attended the noon-time affair in the International City Club, 1900 E. Ocean Blvd.

A similar resolution was presented to Leonard W. Brock, director of the Department of Oil Properties.

ADM. NOEL GAYLER

that there is a hostility in the Communist ideology from two of the four Pacific powers — Russia and the People's Republic of China.

"The Japanese are a powerful economic factor while the U.S. must still present a viable military presence."

Gayler said the Vietnam war "worked the hell out of U.S. ships and aircraft and when peace returns and our modern fleet has some breathing room, there will be plenty of work to do in the field of antisubmarine warfare."

On other topics, he said:

"There is still some subtle discrimination in the Navy but Adm. (Elmo) Zumwalt (chief of naval operations) is continuing his push for equality for all."

"Discipline in today's Navy is not falling apart, although some publicized instances have made it appear to. I personally believe we are doing the right thing in changing many of the old hide-bound traditions and moving into tune with the times."

"Longer hair, beards and mustaches will not affect a man's ability to handle his job. . . . Adm. Paragut did rather well with longer hair than is permitted today."

Gayler addressed the World Affairs Council luncheon after the press conference and returned to his Hawaii headquarters late Friday night.

POW'S REMEMBERED

Mrs. Darrel Pyle, whose husband has been a prisoner of war in Vietnam since 1966, and Lakewood Mayor Mark Hannaford raised a flag in front of Lakewood City Hall Friday in remembrance of prisoners of war and those missing in action. The flag, donated by the organization, "Support Our POW-MIAs," is three-by-five feet, black and white and is adorned with a silhouette of a prisoner near a guard tower. Beneath is the phrase, "You Are Not Forgotten." It will fly in front of city hall for the next 30 days. The organization also will make it available to those who write to Box 1000, Los Alamitos, 90702.

Bicycling is great fun—but records show it's dangerous

By MARK CLUTTER
Staff Writer

Bicycling is great fun, but it also is rather dangerous.

How dangerous it is was pointed out by Detective Dennis Chelstrom, who is assigned to safety education in the school of Downey, a city of less than 80,000 which has a very good traffic safety record.

In 1970 there were 43 bicycle accidents. One was a fatality.

In 1971 accidents soared to 97.

In 1972 there were 84. "The reason for the increase," Chelstrom said, "was the increase in the number of bicycles and especially the 10-speed type."

The 10-speeds, he pointed out, essentially are racing bikes. They have no lights.

Inquest set for defector

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

San Bernardino County Coroner William Hill Friday ordered an inquest into the Jan. 1 shooting death of Russian defector Sergei Kourdakov, though Hill said he remains convinced the death was "accidental or a suicide."

Hill said he ordered the inquest for Feb. 20 "to clear the air" and because "there have been too many confusing statements concerning the death."

Kourdakov, who was in his early 20s, had been living with a family in Cerritos since coming to this country in September.

Kourdakov was staying in a Big Bear-area motel cabin with the 17-year-old daughter of the Cerritos family, identified as Ann Johnson, when he was fatally wounded in the head by a revolver he was carrying, according to information previously released by Hill.

Although an alien who had only rarely visited Washington, D.C., Kourdakov was buried there last week. He defected by swimming from a trawler to the shores of British Columbia in September 1971. Last summer he was brought to this country by Underground Evangelism, Inc., a Glendale-based organization dedicated to smuggling Bibles into Communist countries.

Hill pointed the finger at Underground Evangelism's President L. Joe Bass as the author of at least one of the "confusing statements." Bass has issued a news release that said Kourdakov "died under strange and uncertain circumstances."

Immediately after the death the organization's officials had seemed to accept the explanation that the shooting was an accident, although they argued that it could not possibly have been a suicide "because Sergei had too many plans."

These officials said Kourdakov was carrying the revolver because his life had been threatened while he was in Canada.

The San Bernardino Coroner's office said Friday that all persons having knowledge of the details surrounding the shooting will be called to testify at the inquest.

Fagin role earns man prison term

A Fountain Valley man who admitted a fagin-like role of teaching boys to steal for him got a 10-year prison sentence Friday.

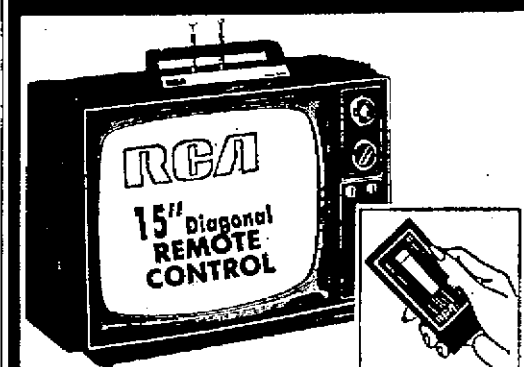

William H. (Bill) Miller, 35, admitted one count of first degree burglary incident to what police claimed was a widespread burglary ring involving juveniles as young as 12.

Police claimed that Miller had obtained a master key to a tract of 44 houses and that most of the burglaries occurred in those places. They said they recovered numerous small appliances, bicycles, tires and other items.

Miller and his wife Linda Lee, 25, and their four children lived in a $35,000 house at 8846 El Capitan St. when warrants for the arrest of the couple were issued last July 28. Officers found that they apparently had been tipped off. Their house was vacant. The couple was arrested several days later, however, in Dallas, Tex. They waived extradition to Orange County.

Mrs. Miller drew a year's term in the Orange County Jail as condition to three years of probation, on a plea of guilty to second degree burglary.

THE DAILY INVESTOR
Putting money to work

By DON CAMPBELL

When you live 10 miles from town, the temperature is below zero, the snow is four feet deep, and you're stuck in the house with two cans of soup, you "make do" with what you have on hand, and never the recriminations about how you should have laid more aside.

Q: My aunt just lost her husband and is in need of a regular income. He had no pension or insurance. All she will be getting is her monthly allotment from Social Security. She has $20,000 drawing five per cent interest in the bank. Could you recommend to me some income producing bonds or stocks which would give her a regular income? She is 70 years old and in fair health. She has no children.

A: Well, it's no time for crying over spilled milk — over the fact, that is, that her husband didn't (or possibly, couldn't) provide her with some sort of protection in anticipation of his death. The immediate problem is that of putting the $20,000 to work as gainfully as possible and, in this respect, we can rule out the stock market right off the bat. In the light of her age and circumstances, it's too risky; and the return on her money would be too small. How about a good grade high-yielding

I really feel, though, that — at the age of 70 — your aunt would be better off advised to make an outright purchase of an annuity. This is a one-time purchase that will guarantee her a steady income of about $155 a month for as long as she lives.

Any good, stable, life insurance company can fill you in on the details.

Q: I AM 26 years old, unmarried, make $247 a week and have an insurance policy for $8,000 convertible to a maximum of $14,000. I also have a policy with my employer and have had the $8,000 policy for four years. My problem is this: as I said, I am not married, and furthermore have no immediate or long range prospects of doing so. Would I be better off dropping the policy, taking what few dollars have accrued in dividends and putting the money into "reliable" stocks? I personally feel as if I am throwing my money away on my insurance policy. Am I right or wrong?

A. Wrong. You're trying to get me to agree with your own rationalization that you are, somehow, over-insured. You're not. Okay — you're 26 and have no intention of getting married. Swell! At the age of 26 I had the necessary for the foreseeable future.

At your age, however, and in your income range, there's no reason why you shouldn't be putting aside some cash savings and starting some sort of long-range investment program — either a contractual plan with a growth-oriented mutual fund, or via a monthly investment plan that can be set up for you by a local brokerage. Under the latter arrange-

Previn will conduct score of 'Superstar'

Andre Previn has been signed to conduct all post-production scoring on Norman Jewison's rock opera film "Jesus Christ Superstar."

The noted composer-London symphony orchestra resident conductor will begin work on the Universal/Robert Stigwood production in London on Feb. 15, with scoring expected to last one month. Previn previously has been associated with more than 50 motion pictures, including "My Fair Lady," "Gigi," and "The Music Lovers."

A breath of flesh air... Or, Tyrone's pants rated 'X'

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Authorities in New York and some other cities are trying to close down pornographic bookstores and movie houses that flourish in downtown areas.

From a sociological standpoint, this may be a desirable move. But it is an economic setback. For regardless of what your attitude toward obscenity might be, you will have to concede that the smut boom has opened up new employment opportunities for people with the right kind of talent.

Not long ago, for example, I was introduced to a chap who identified himself as a professional breather.

Tyrone Gaspaire (to use his screen name) explained that he earned his living by breathing on sound tracks for X-rated skin flicks.

"If you have ever seen any of these films, you may have noticed something peculiar about the love scenes — the lovers never speak to each other," Gaspaire said.

I said, "mere words are inexpressive in moments like that."

"And also expensive," Gaspaire said. "Sound cameras and crews cost a lot of money. So we shoot the scenes mute and then dub in the audibles."

"The typical skin flick sound track is a mixture of progressive jazz and heavy breathing. I can't play a note but I'm one of the heaviest breathers in show biz."

I said, "how does a professional breather go about preparing for a skin flick role?"

"Techniques vary. My personal method is to lay off all forms of exercise for at least six weeks. Then, just before we start recording the sound track, I run up a short flight of stairs."

"Couldn't the producer get the same effect by taking a tape recorder into the emphysema ward of a nearby hospital?"

"That would be artistically dishonest," Gaspaire replied. "Maximum dramatic impact can only be achieved by matching the breathing with the action on the screen."

I said, "how did you happen to acquire this talent? Was it God-given, or something you had to work at?"

"I was just lucky, I guess," Gaspaire said. "I had a lot of asthma attacks when I was a child."

"That, plus a bad case of swollen adenoids, got me into the habit of breathing through my mouth, which is one of the requisites of skin flick respiration."

"The little refinements came later. Like starting to smoke at an early age and developing a chronic sinus condition."

"But to give credit where credit is due, it was air pollution that made me a star."

Earl's Pearls

By Earl Wilson

Today's Best Laugh: There's a new organization called CIA-AA, reports Lynn Lichty. It's for people who drink, but want to keep it a secret.

Wish I'd Said That: Somebody described a misfit: "He's the kind of guy who eats a frankfurter on a hamburger roll."

Remembered Quote: "The trouble with today's young generation is that they want to climb the ladder of success by elevator."

Earl's Pearls: Any cafe customer will tell you — the most expensive piece of furniture in the world is a ringside table.

Alan King still raps airlines in his comedy routines, mentioning all the luggage he's had go astray: "Why, I have suitcases that have been twice as much of the country as I have." That's earl, brother.

'Plaza Suite' will debut on Monday

The Long Beach Community Players' Studio Theater will present eight performances of Neil Simon's celebrated comedy hit, "Plaza Suite," beginning Monday at 8 p.m.

The theater is the upstairs wing of the Community Playhouse and recently presented Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and a children's version of "Androcles and the Lion."

"Plaza Suite" will be directed by John Williams and will feature Andrew Hawkes in the principal role in each of the three one-act plays that form the whole of "Plaza Suite." The three situations take place in the same suite of New York's Plaza Hotel.

The play will run Monday and Tuesday, then

Brando, Fonda are favorites

Marlon Brando and Jane Fonda have been named "World Film Favorites" in a 54-country survey made by Reuters News Bureau on behalf of the Hollywood Foreign Press Assn.'s 30th Annual Golden Globe Awards.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF JUDGE ROY BEAN — Paul Newman stars as the legendary "hanging judge" in this tale of the Southwest directed by John Huston. With Ava Gardner and Jacqueline Bisset. (PG)

SNOWBALL EXPRESS — Dean Jones, Nancy Olson and Keenan Wynn in a Walt Disney comedy about a family that inherits a rundown resort hotel in the Rockies. (R)
DELIVERANCE — Suspense and violence as four city men's canoe trip down a wild Appalachian river ends in a brutal confrontation with mountaineers. With Jon Voigt and Burt Reynolds. (R)

THE GETAWAY — Ali MacGraw and Steve McQueen, teaming well, plan a daring bank robbery in Texas after his parole from prison. (PG)
PETE 'N' TILLIE — Comedy and tragedy are entwined in the line performances of Walter Mat-thau and Carol Burnett as two losers who meet and marry. (PG)

ELVIS ON TOUR — A national concert tour is the setting for Elvis Presley's songs and personal reflections. (G)

THE NEW CENTURIONS — Detective sergeant and novelist Joseph Wambaugh's realistic tale of the life of uniformed policemen in East Los Angeles. A fine performance by George C. Scott. (R)

LADY SINGS THE BLUES — The tragic story of famous blues singer Billie (Lady Day) Holliday is recreated by Diana Ross, with the Holliday style but the Ross voice. (R)
MAN OF LA MANCHA — Peter O'Toole portrays Cervantes' Don Quixote, James Coco is Sancho Panza and Sophia Loren is Dulcinea in this extravagant musical based on the Broadway smash. (PG)

THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE — Special effects highlight a suspenseful drama of survivors' attempts to escape from an ocean liner capsize by a huge wave. With Gene Hackman, Ernest Borgnine, Stella Stevens and Shelley Winters. (PG)

Windy gusts make woolies musts. If any are left, keep New Year's resolutions . . . Piccadilly descends 37,800 ocean feet Jan. 22, 1950 . . . Last quarter of the Moon Jan. 26 . . . Coast Guard created Jan. 28, 1915 . . . Average length of days for week, 9 hours, 43 minutes . . . Raccoons mating . . . If clear on 25th expect a happy year . . . Chicago fire Jan. 28, 1888 . . . National Geographic Society founded Jan. 27, 1888 . . . Small leaks sink many great ships. Old Farmer's Riddle: Why is a nobleman like a book? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: Any idea where the expression "White Elephant" originated? One hears it referring to unwanted goods; yet, the albino elephant of the jungles is considered a rarity. How come? A.B.S., Madison, Wis.

Once in the dim and misty past there was a country called Siam. In Siam, which was in the Far East, the white elephant was pretty high sacred. So sacred, in fact, that a small army of men were kept busy caring for the animal and keeping him fed. In return the elephant merely looked pleasant and allowed folks to look at him. As far as we know, the expression came from this little bit of history, referring to something expensive to maintain, and just about useless.

Home Illness: Help prevent flu by painting the bottom step white . . . Mark drivers to indicate at what point they will fall out . . . Riddle answer: He has a title.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Warm at first, then 2-4" snow in mountains; week ends with mixed rain and snow, 8-10" snow in mountains.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Rain to start, then mixed with snow by midweek; clear and mild latter part, then rainy weekend.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Intermittent rain, then real thaw by midweek; scattered showers and milder latter part, then colder.

Southeast Coastal-Piedmont: Cloudy and warm to start, then coastal showers; end of week warm with intermittent rain.

Florida: Clear and warm at first, highs in 70s by midweek; mostly cloudy, showers in central and north latter part.

Upscale and Western N.Y.-Toronto & Montreal: Rain, changing to rain and snow by midweek; snow, 3-5" latter part, then cold.

Greater Ohio Valley: Unseasonably warm to start, then some rain by midweek; rain and snow latter part, then clearing and colder.

Deep South: Week begins cloudy and warm; intermittent showers for rest of week.

Chicago and Southern Great Lakes: Unseasonably warm to start, then rain and snow from midweek on.

Northern Great Plains-Great Lakes: Light snow through midweek, then clear and cold; intermittent snow, 4-8" for week-end.

Central Great Plains: Light rain for most of week; changing to light snow and colder latter part.

Texas-Oklahoma: Mostly clear and hot until weekend; then increasing cloudiness and rain.

Rocky Mountain Region: Snow all week; 15-20" in mountains, 4-6" for weekend.

Southwest Desert: Increasing cloudiness to start, then rain by midweek; clearing latter part, highs in mid-60s.

Pacific Northwest: A miserable week; alternating light snow and rain, sometimes mixed.

California: Light rain in north until midweek, then partial clearing, rain heavy in south; light rain and slightly warmer latter part.

CLUB NOTES

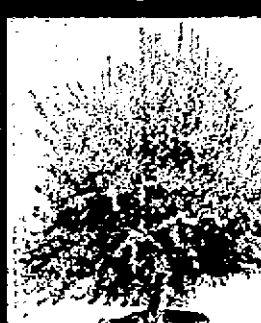

The Lakewood Garden Club will meet Thursday at 12:30 p.m. in the Lakewood Youth Center. A guest speaker will discuss Hydroponics: The growing of tomatoes and other plants without soil. Refreshments will be served and visitors are welcome.

Registrations-in-a-home landscaping class will be taken Jan. 30 and Feb. 6, in room K-6, South High School, Torrance, on Pacific Coast Highway.

Don Woolley, retired superintendent of the South Coast Botanic Garden announced that there will be a showing of a rare collection of unusual plant paintings during the Feb. 13 class only. The following Tuesday, Feb. 20, will be a pruning lesson and demonstration. Class outline includes effect of climate, fire and frost; use of fertilizers, soil amendments; proper watering, lighting pests and diseases; how to prune, graft, and transplant ornamentals; plant propagation and plant nomenclature.

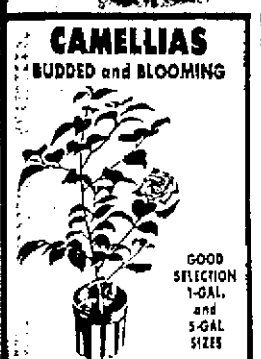

Class is sponsored by the Adult Education Department of the Torrance Evening High School. Class meets every Tuesday from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. for 18 weeks.

Gardening

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Clinic

Q. Enclosed are leaves from my red camellia. Why do the leaves curl? There is no evidence of bugs . . . or is there? I fertilize it per nursery instruction. I've tried little water . . . lots of water. Nothing helps. Plant is 20 feet from my pool. Deck flushing (clear water) runs into the plant. Could that be the cause? The plant is always loaded with buds . . . 2 or 3 together . . . but they are not as healthy looking, don't last as long as my white camellia blossoms. The red plant is 2 feet from a 5-foot wall, but it gets lots of sunshine in the morning. The ball of the plant is level with the ground. Please advise me. Vito N. Romans, 250 Termino, Long Beach 90803.

A. Constant upper soil dampness is not good for the plant, because it shuts off air into the soil. Our 32-year-old camellias in mostly shade don't get a deep watering more than once every 2½ to 3 weeks and then only during hottest part of the summer! Then they are watered to about 3 feet deep but at least 3 feet away from the plants. Sure the shrubs are foliage bathed couple of times a week, but only to provide humidity, not as a watering of the plants. The branch you sent has two sections. From tip of the top bud down 2½ inches is a noticeable brown color, then a knuckle-like thickness with connecting branch below it slightly thicker but lighter brown color. The knuckle with the branch above it indicates the last cycle growth which is shorter than it normally would be if the plant was thriving. This means the plant isn't getting sufficient water throughout the root system due to heavy-clay soil, or the soil isn't firm enough hence the water doesn't stay long enough to thoroughly water the roots.

It is possible the plant isn't getting enough nourishment, which should be at least two to four times a year depending on its size. Landscape uses of camellias are practically unlimited. Some varieties form spreading habit of growth, good for espaliering on walls, fences, and lattice work. An effective use may be achieved by growing a plant or two in tubs and trained on lattice framework, all as one portable unit. Plants may be placed in patio, porch, or garden where temporary screening or color is needed.

PLANTS in containers, whether dwarf fruit trees, camellias, azaleas, roses or other plants should be watered properly, assuming the soil is prepared with some organic material mixed with the soil or an already prepared potting soil mixture.

Having had some inquiries from our garden column readers about pittosporum phyllaeroides, one of the Australian Laurels, encouraged me to discuss this interesting though lesser known pittosporum. It serves several specific landscape uses, is somewhat slower grower than the other varieties and is not easily obtainable at most nurseries. The reason is that people don't know about it, and they are costly because they are scarce.

It could be called the weeping willow Pittosporum, but its common name is "butter bush," and grows about 20 feet tall and spreads 12 to 15 feet in diameter. The small yellow flowers are fragrant, tolerate cold to about 20 degrees and dose well in milder desert areas.

IT IS an ideal specimen tree with graceful drooping branches. Good for screening the sharp corner of the house, in front of a bare expanse, or some 10 to 15 feet in front of a porchless entrance to a house front door for more privacy and a willowy landscape effect.

Speaking of trees, here's some interesting tree comments from a U.S. Forest Service scientist Dr. Lee Dochinger a plant pathologist, presented to the 40th annual convention of the International Shade Tree Conference held at the Newporter Inn, in Newport Beach, last August. He said:

"TREES not only take carbon dioxide out of the air and put oxygen in, they help rid the air of dangerous metallic particles and other pollutants. The harmful particles are asbestos, zinc, lead and cadmium. Tests have shown that trees nearest the highways have more lead and other metallic dusts on their leaves than those farther away. It shows that trees are important agents helping to prevent such materials and other roadway pollutants over the area. The Forest Service is additionally checking further into the pollutants."

Dr. Dochinger added: "Man's best friend in nature is really the tree. Just to mention a few benefits to man, they give aesthetic pleasure, shade, coolness, food and shelter, quiet and recreation. Now, in addition, we are beginning to realize they also may clean the air we breathe."

SO FAR as we know, luckily, Camellias don't appear to suffer from the smog. We really don't know how old the oldest camellia might be in Southern California, or the United States. We have read where in the Orient, camellia trees have been known to grow for as long as 300 years and attain a height of 45 to 50 feet. The camellia trees in Kuanming Province sometimes are two feet in diameter and their blossoms as large as small pie plates. Dr. T. Nakai of Tokyo, Japan, considered by many to be the leading botanist of his country tells of a verse composed by Yakamochi Otomo, the Governor of Etchū in 833 A.D. — His ceremonial verse read: "Please spend your time easily and familiarly today, our brave friends, just as the Camellias on the thousand peaks of deep mountains."

HERE in Southern California we don't have to grow camellias on peaks of deep mountains. We can grow them in our gardens. They'll stand north, east, and west exposures. Camellias planted in a west exposure must be more thoughtfully selected, due to more heat and sunny exposure.

Landscape uses of camellias are practically unlimited. Some varieties form spreading habit of growth, good for espaliering on walls, fences, and lattice work. An effective use may be achieved by growing a plant or two in tubs and trained on lattice framework, all as one portable unit. Plants may be placed in patio, porch, or garden where temporary screening or color is needed.

PLANTS in containers, whether dwarf fruit trees, camellias, azaleas, roses or other plants should be watered properly, assuming the soil is prepared with some organic material mixed with the soil or an already prepared potting soil mixture.

Jobs for gardeners

Plant columbine from containers into the shade garden for possible late spring flowers. They are perennials and last for some years.

Scatter small-sling bait periodically throughout the garden area, and especially the ground cover! Don't let the pet dog or cat see the bait scattered so they won't be curious and try to sample it.

Grow pansies in pan pots for portable color in the patio, porch, or heeled in bare spaces of the flower bed.

Hardy outdoor fragrant violets bloom more freely if they are planted in areas where they get several hours of morning or late afternoon sun.
